Energy for people

Mark Duffner glows with enthusiasm. He is a power plant whose lines of energy are connected to his players, coaches, and staff. When Duff talks, people do more than listen; they glow themselves. When other coaches might need artificial voice amplification to show their zeal, Duffner is merely himself. His exuberance on the practice field, or before a game, comes out as "DuffStuff," the energized sayings of a coach whose college record is 63-13-1. If Maryland red is hot, so is Mark Duffner.

The 24 red hot pages that start and finish this book point to why Maryland is football hot. The first DuffStuff is a fitting theme to start with: "No one walks but the mailman." Around Mark Duffner no one walks—it's a sprint to excellence.

Color the ACC red hot, too

Maryland and the Atlantic Coast Conference celebrate 40th anniversaries in 1993. Maryland was the Atlantic Coast Conference's first football champion 40 years ago and its first National Champion in the initial year of conference play. Maryland is one of seven charter league members.

The ACC is recognized as a premier conference, whether in football where it produced four bowl teams a year ago, or in the entire roster of sports where four NCAA championships were won in 1992-1993.

We have great attitudes.
We are pro-active in our thoughts and behavior We choose to act in a manner consistent with positive winning people We are enthusiastic, energetic people who solve problems

We are indivisible as a staff.
We value and respect each individual staff member We listen to each other because each coach s contribution is valuable and important It is amazing what can be accomplished when nobody cares who gets the credit

We are great teachers and innovators.
We leave no stone unturned in our preparation Through evaluation and experimentation we are constantly searching for new ideas and better methods of doing everything We seek to master the fundamentals and they are always our top priority Never do we do things because "that s the way we have always done it "

We have excellent player-coach relationships.
We are here for the players, the players are not here for us We have their well-being in mind first and foremost in all decisions We care about our players as people and not just as athletes We treat them as part of our own families

We are accountable.
We are responsible for our own success as well as our failure We work to improve on our faults, and build on our success in all areas of our lives. Our program is based on a We-Mentality "We are what we are for a reason." "We believe that what we see on film is solely what we are, either coaching or allowing to happen."

A Maryland academic degree is the most important thing.
Education is why we are here, and it is ultimately our highest priority. We produce educated young men who are also fine football players

We are great recruiters.
We uphold the excellence of our program through our recruiting effort—both players and coaches We are honest and relentless in our search for top quality students who possess great speed strength and character We are thorough in our evaluation and personal in our approach

The "little things" we do make a big difference We represent the University with pride performance and excellence We do things correctly

We are an all-out effort team.
We out-hit and out-run our opponents for 60 minutes We make things happen.

We win the eight critical situations.
These are the only eight situations and statistics that really matter in a football game. We win these situations, and win the game.

1 We win the turnover/take-away battle.
2 We win the compete zone and goal line
3 We win the kicking game.
4 We are less penalized
5 We win the sudden change
6 We win short yardage.
7 We win the fourth quarter
8 We win the clock situations

We are the strongest and best conditioned team in the ACC.
Our program is geared toward constant establishment of "personal records." We develop ourselves in terms of strength, power and speed In becoming more football efficient, our work ethic is second to none "We are proud of our conditioning and anxious to demonstrate it!"

At Maryland we have a great deal of fun.
"Expect the unexpected." We don't take ourselves so seriously that we forget to have fun We value good humor and levity. At Maryland, we enjoy life; it's not just the same old thing

Our program is an all-encompassing football family.
Inclusion, rather than exclusion, always helps our program grow for the better. Players, coaches, administrators, faculty, alumni and friends are part of the extended family which makes Maryland uniquely great.

We are a wide-open, attacking football team that plays with great emotion and enthusiasm.
At Maryland, we beat our opponents, not ourselves We play together as a team, and we are exciting because of our aggressive, physical, and intelligent play We have a go-for-it mentality

We obey all NCAA, ACC and University of Maryland rules.
We intend to do what is legal and correct. We play by the rules

The stage is set for success

Imaginative. Practical. Convenient. Well-equipped.

Maryland lived-up to its commitment to house its football team in the finest facility possible. Between the 1991 and 1992 football seasons, the Terps' $7 million Football Team Complex was constructed in Byrd Stadium's east end. Construction of the Complex completed Stage One of Byrd refurbishment; in all $20 million was spent since the fall of 1990 on installing new seating, rest rooms, concession stands, and a 90-foot high, 160-foot long press box.

Imaginative.

The 46,000 square foot Football Complex, designed by H.O.K. Architects of Kansas City, who also designed Orioles Park at Camden Yards, combines football function with imaginative design. Athletes work out in the 7,000 square foot strength and conditioning area under skylights that reveal 35,000 pounds of workout machinery. Each player has a double locker—and a footlocker. On the second floor, every coach's office overlooks Byrd Stadium through oversized windows. A Terrapin Terrace surrounds the second floor offices for outdoor functions.

Duff stuff

Practical.

The layout of the ground floor rooms allows easy access from strength and conditioning to oversized lockerrom to medical facilities to equipment areas The lockerrooms, which house a sauna and roomy shower facilities, are less than 100 feet away from all conference areas on the second floor The nine conference areas are interconnecting, and feature state-of-the-art audio-visual equipment. Special snag free carpeting was installed in the locker area, which also features a player's lounge.

Convenient.

The Football Complex is within walking distance of dorms and dining areas, and is situated in the midst of campus life. Both the practice fields and Byrd Stadium's turf are immediately outside the lockerroom door, or near-by The steps leading down to the Complex's front door face Cole Field House and the home of Maryland's large academic support unit

Well-equipped.

Each phase of the Complex—from the 3,500 square foot medical and hydrotherapy rooms, to weight area to office suites—is state-of-the-art. A satellite dish links-up to a sophisticated audio-visual room.

The footall stage is set for winning.

No one does quarterbacks like Maryland

Frank Reich vs. Houston, January 3, 1993

Frank Reich, gentleman and football player, team man and quarterback, family man and cool leader, does come backs. He is better at it than any one in football history He is a Terrapin quarterback one of a half-dozen presently in professional football, the most of any school

Reich did not start at Maryland until his senior sea son as he played behind Boomer Esiason, who would go on to become AFC Player of the Year Reich waited his turn to glory completing 64% of his passes in 1984 in lead ing Maryland to a bowl game

On November 10 of that year, he led Maryland to the greatest comeback in NCAA football history, coming off the bench for Stan Gelbaugh who started for Coach Bobby Ross Maryland was down, 31 0, at halftime to defending National Champion Miami No one in football history had overcome so large a deficit Maryland and Reich did

He completed 12 of 15 psses for 260 yards and three TDs in the second half, propelling the Terps to a 42-40 victory

Before anyone could exceed Reich's comeback on the colle giate level in the intervening nine years, Reich met destiny again on January 3, 1993 On that day Reich led the Buffalo Bills to the greatest comeback in pro football history

As in the Miami game he did it against a quality team Houston, and he perfoi ed hi magic on a stage as b g as any in football The NFL Playoffs During the NBC telecast the expert analyst in the studio early on reminded his co leagues of Reich's comeback abilities The analyst was Boomer Esiason

Down 35-3 early in the sec ond half Reich threw for a career high 289 yards and four TDs Memories will fade as to what happened in the 1993 post-season – including who won the Super Bowl – but what Reich did will not be so easily forgotten

Buffalo moved on in the playoffs, banging heads in the next game with the Pittsburgh Steelers The Steeler quarter back Neil O Donnell of Maryland

Frank Reich and Maryland 42, Miami 40

Houston 28, Frank Reich and the Bills, 3, at the half (The score quickly goes to 35-3 to start the second half as Reich, in for the injured Jim Kelly, is intercepted in the first two minutes, and Houston scores on 58-yard return)

Little Mo, the stuff of excellence

Coach Jim Tatum, Little Mo and Big Mo

The Modzelewski's came from West Natrona, Pa. The first, Ed, or Big Mo, matriculated in 1948. He was a fullback of renown, who in his junior season gained 153 yards on 28 carries to propel Maryland to a 28-13 Sugar Bowl victory over Tennessee. A sophomore tackle on that squad, the only team in school history to go unbeaten through both the regular season and a bowl, was little brother Dick.

Although bigger than Big Mo (6-0, 210), Dick (6-0, 235) was tabbed Little Mo, forever. Through three years of starting at Maryland and through an 11-year NFL career with the Redskins, Steelers, and Giants, he was Little Mo. An All-Pro tackle, Dick played for the Giants in their glory period of the late 1950s and early 1960s, when Maryland's Colts played his Giants for back-to-back world championships

At Maryland, Dick Modzelewski was the stuff of excellence. His three Terp varsities were 24 4-1 Each went to a bowl. Dick was the first Maryland football player to win a premier national honor when he was selected the Outland Trophy winner of 1952 as the nation's outstanding lineman. He was a consensus All-America in 1952.

This December, Little Mo is being inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame, the sixth Terrapin to earn the honor (the others: Coach Clark Shaughnessy, Coach Bear Bryant, Coach Jim Tatum, Lineman Bob Ward, Quarterback Jack Scarbath). His selection colors this year's Hall of Fame induction ceremonies Maryland red.

Terps jump start the ACC

What could be better for a new conference, formed from schools in traditional Southern leagues, than to start its first season with a national championship in football? The Atlantic Coast Conference was charmed from the start, thanks to Coach Jim Tatum and his 1953 Terrapins.

Looking back on 1953 is a sentimental journey to the top of the football heap for Maryland Not only did the Terrapins roll over non-league traditional Southern powerhouses Mississippi and Alabama on the way to a perfect 10-0 season, but the newly-minted ACC also got its first consensus All-America from Maryland (Tackle Stan Jones), and its first Player of the Year (Quarterback Bernie Faloney), and first Coach of the Year (Tatum) from the Terps.

Both the ACC and Maryland's national champions celebrate a 40th anniversary in 1993. Each is red hot.

"I want to see red everywhere!"

Duff stuff

But the fight color is red

Mark Duffner is on a mission. He likes red. It's a dominating color, and Duffner would like to start dominating in the stands before the first whistle is blown, with the color red. Duffner is not the first coach at Maryland to take to red, deemed the University of Maryland's fight color through much of its history. Jim Tatum's teams, the most successful in school history, wore red, as did the teams of Jerry Claiborne and Bobby Ross, who also dominated in the ACC.

Maroon was the brand of red predominating Maryland's early football uniforms (1892-1910). Curley Byrd's long tenure as head coach (1911-1934) featured teams in black and gold. When Hall of Fame coach Clark Shaugnhessy came back east from Stanford in 1942, he brought with him Stanford's uniforms which were red and white. Except for a brief return to black and gold from 1943-1946, Shaugnhessy's color scheme has been the football fashion at Maryland.

The Terrapins are not at a loss for colors because red, white, black and gold are all featured in the state flag, and each is deemed an official school color. Before every football game alumnus Craig Dameron leads Maryland onto the field of play carrying the distinctive Maryland flag, just as he has for the past 18 years.

Right behind him comes Duffner, leading his charges Look for him; he'll be dressed in red

A colorful history

Maryland's flag bears the arms of the Calvert and Crossland families Calvert was the family name of the Lords Baltimore, who founded Maryland, and their colors of gold and black appear in the first and fourth quarters of the flag. Crossland was the family of the mother of George Calvert, first Lord Baltimore. The red and white Crossland colors, with a Greek cross terminating in the foils, appears in the second and third quarters. The flag was first flown in its present form on October 25, 1888, at Gettysburg Battlefield for ceremonies dedicating monuments to Maryland regiments of the Army of the Potomac It was officially adopted in 1904.

Maryland football tradition was enriched at the start of the 1992-1993 school year. The six-decade-old good luck charm of touching the Terrapin's nose was brought inside of Byrd Stadium for the first time. But in June another Maryland tradition ended: Linda Kubany, football secretary since August 1, 1966, died of cancer after battling the disease for six years. Linda was a surrogate parent to hundreds of student-athletes, and a thoroughly professional peer to a score of coaches. She was what the program she worked for is about: Courage, tenacity, competitiveness, and a love of the game.

Terrapin Game Day

The Byrd Stadium Press Box (Tyser Tower) consists of five levels. The third level has a 200 seat press row, and is where all statistics are furnished. The fourth level is where home and visiting radio are situated, as well as television. The fifth level is a photographer's deck. Two elevators are used on game day; either one will get you to your seat.

Only working press will be admitted to the third level of Tyser Tower.

The third annual joe blair Media Golf Outing and Picnic is scheduled for August 5 at the University of Maryland Golf Course. joe hosts the Washington/Baltimore media in a scramble format that ensures no one discovers the athletic abilities of those who cover sports. Coach Duffner and his staff as well as other athletic department personnel will play in each foursome.

August 5: joe f. blair Media Golf Outing and Picnic
August 8: Freshmen report
August 9-12: Orientation for freshmen
August 12: Varsity reports
August 13: Press & Photo Day 12:30-2:30
August 14: First Practice
August 18: First day in pads
September 4: Host Virginia

Press parking passes are honored in the parking garage next to Cole Field House, which is just down Field House Drive from the Tyser Tower.

Photographers will be issued arm bands at the base of Section 27 before the game. No trip to the press box is necessary to get credentialed. A sports information coordinator will be on the field with flips and some food for halftime. No one, including photographers, is allowed in the stadium with umbrellas.

Telephones are available to the media throughout press row on level three to transmit stories. Anyone wishing to order their own phone should contact the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company of Maryland (301-852-4540).

Food service is available for media on the third level. University Dining Services, led by Matt Sherriff, Jim Allenchey and Nancy Loomis, serve food fine enough to deserve a meal ticket, which is attached to all press credentials. Food service is available one hour before kick-off.

After Terrapin Games

Complete statistics will be distributed, as well as quotes from both head coaches.

Maryland's post-game press conference takes place in the Football Complex Conference Room on the second floor. joe blair and Herb Hartnett will direct the media to the proper area. The press conference will be televised back to the Tyser Tower.

Opponent interviews will take place in the Football Complex near the Visiting Locker room.

The Atlantic Coast Conference and the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association policy on post game interviews: Prior to the completion of the game, the sports information directors from each ACC school should poll the media as to which players they would like to interview following the game. Following the game, those players should be brought to an interview area separated from fans, boosters, alumni and parents, etc.

In addition, thirty minutes after the coach has left the locker room area for his post-game interview, the locker room will be opened to all accredited media (for a half-hour).

A wrap-up of the game is available on the Terphone (301-314-TERP).

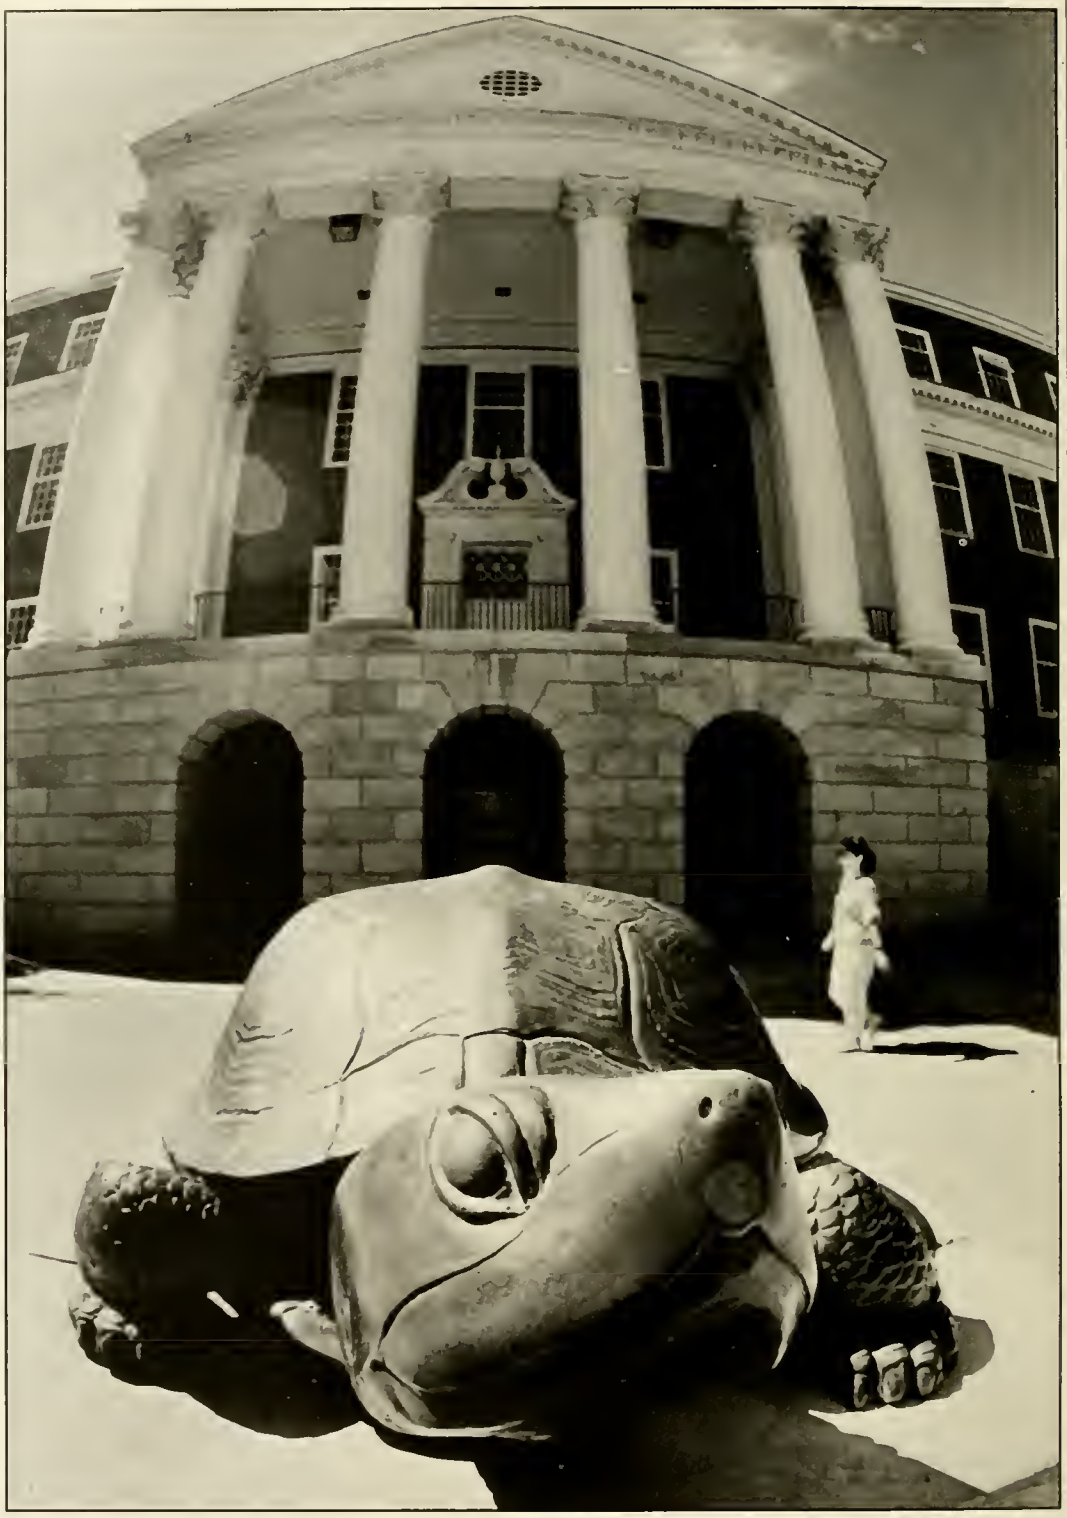
Top of the Top Shell

Testudo is a Diamondback turtle. Like some other famous personages born into the Depression of the 1930s, the derivation of his name is cloudy. But it is likely that his monicker is derived from the scientific classification for turtle (testudines). Or the top turtle could be named after testudo gigantia, a species native to the African nation of Syechelles and one of its remote islands, Aldabra. Or the name could have come from a dictionary definition that says the word, testudo, was derived from the Latin and meant a shelter held over Roman soldiers heads—like a tortoise shell. These explanations are a long way from the Chesapeake Bay where the Diamondback lives.

When Testudo had his coming out on May 23, 1933, he was thrown into a world filled with intimidating mascots—Wildcats, Tigers, Devils, Wolves, Bears — thought up over a half-century of intercollegiate competition. Maryland College Park was consolidated from different state schools in 1920 to form the base of today's wide-ranging state system, and the remodeled Maryland needed a flagcarrier to do battle with Wahoos, Lions and Generals.

Dr. H.C. Byrd, a football coach who later became University President, recommended the Diamondback as mascot in 1932 in response to the student newspaper's search for an "official" leader. Byrd's childhood in Crisfield, Md., apparently included skirmishes with this brand of snapping turtle, indigenous to the Bay. The school paper was in fact already called The Diamondback, and when the Class of 1933 stepped forward with the idea of giving the University a permanent bronzed version as its graduation gift, Testudo's family was in to stay.

Maryland had been referring to itself as Old Liners, yet another name whose derivation no one seems sure of. Historians are in a scrimmage over whether the nickname is a reference to a Revolutionary War Troop of Maryland soldiers who distinguished themselves on the field of battle, or they feel it could refer to a squabble with Pennsylvanians over just where the border between the two states should be.



Testudo reigns in front of McKeldin Library.

The Class of '33 raised money for casting a Diamondback by holding its Senior Prom on campus to save money on expenses. And the yearbook and Student Government Association chipped-in. Edwin C. Mayo, Class of '04 and a former quarterback, donated at cost the 300 pound bronzed beauty as President of Gorham Maufacturing in Providence, RI. Robert J. Hill cast the inspired sculpture accomplished by company artist Aristide Cianfrani. Further turtleization came when the student yearbook, The Reville, became The Terrapin in 1935. Newspapers, even then exploring every angle, shortened Terrapin to Terp for headline writing ease when it wasn't trying to cram Old Liner into a single column head. The name was in place; now came the stuff of legend.

The Stuff of Legend

The nicely thought out plans that made Testudo an instant hit did have a flaw. Putting Mr. T in front of the campus gym, Ritchie Coliseum, exposed Testudo to every road agent wearing enemy colors. Ritchie was right on U.S. Route 1, then the principal North-South highway along the Eastern Seaboard. When a less dignified opponent needed something extra against the turtle and his troops, they practiced emotional blackmail, and kidnapped him.

That was not the worst of it. They painted his golden skin enemy colors, and defaced his pedestal which was only to have the block M on it. Instead, opponents painted illegitmate JH's or GW's or V's or NC's on his nest. A riot took place when Johns Hopkins students kidnapped the handsome reptile in 1947; 200 police were called to the Baltimore campus to control the justified anger of College Park students. Two years later, the nifty shelled crusader was found on the lawn of a Virginia (The University) fraternity house, whose occupants smugly called President Byrd with the message to get Testudo off their lawn. Of course Byrd obliged, and soon after Testudo was hidden in the campus carpentry shop where he was less inspirational, but a whole lot safer.

The second stadium bearing Byrd's name was built in 1950, and in 1951 Testudo, sans coats of rivals' paint, took his perch in front of the Byrd Stadium football team house. He had beaten back all who would wrong him, and to make sure he would not travel again, he was fed 700 pounds of cement and had his body attached to a new pedestal by long steel rods.

With his permanent nesting came success for Maryland. Acting as guardian to waves of Terp competitors, the national football championship came, as did several ACC titles in the 1950s. His popularity among the students might have been the undoing of success, however. When McKeldin Libary was constructed in the middle of campus, the student body demanded Testudo's fulltime presence in the center of day-to-day activities. Testudo had gone far beyond being just a symbol for athletics. He was a campus symbol. Students carefully carried him up the hill to the main College Green and the library, and he was bolted to a new bed of stone in the early 1960s.

Coincidence or not, football did have a downturn in the 1960s with Testudo absent. In the 1970s, when a costumed Testudo started to roam the sideline, success was returning. The furry Testudo reigned over unrivaled ACC football prowess, and sent Terps out to the four corners of the football world for bowls and intersectional clashes.

In 1992, a bronze twin to Testudo was created and installed just outside the new Football Complex locker room door. As the football team takes the field the team congregates around the bronze Terrapin, and then all touch his nose for good luck.

Joel Meisner Co. of Farmingdale, N.Y., created the twin. Two men spent two days last June pouring a rubberized material over Testudo as it sat in front of McKeldin Library, followed by a wax mold on top. After a day to let the molds set, the wax was broken and easily removed. The rubber mold, which actually recreated Testudo, was painstakingly peeled away from the bronze and taken back to Meisner's factory where the twin was created using the Lost Wax method.

Fifty-nine years ago, the Diamondback Turtle Gorham used as a model for the shelled wonder had a ribbon attached to it at the dedication. The ribbon was tied to the canvas covering the statue. The Diamondback moved forward, and revealed the splendor of his larger, bronzed brother. But no one rushed the smaller Diamondback in his duties. All in attendance were true believers who knew what many unfaithful have discovered about Terrapins. They bite.

Stuffed Testudo meets bronze original.

Story of Byrd

Born in 1950, Byrd Stadium is being reborn in the 1990s.

'Between November of 1991 and August of 1992, a Football Complex was constructed just beyond the East End Zone. Costing $7.0 million dollars, the Complex contains football offices, lockers, equipment and medical support areas, and a weight room. The new building's presence changes the atmosphere for games. Formerly, the buildings that enclosed the open end of the horseshoe were well back from the playing area. They have been torn down, and the new building is just under 40 feet from the east end line.

*Just beyond that end line for the first time sits a bronze Terrapin. Its installation was part of the celebration of the 100th year of football in 1992.

* The concrete bowl, erected on the wetlands of an orchard, had decades of water damage repaired above and below its surface between October of 1990 and August of 1991 The 10 miles of redwood plank seats that held millions were replaced by environmentally less costly aluminum sheathed benches.

* The old concession stands on the south side, a slice of stadium architecture sentimentally pleasing to those who remember their first visit to a football game, but prone to long lines on hot days, are now state-of-the-art palate pleasers. They are joined by new rest rooms and the stadium's first formal entranceway off of Field House Drive.

The Tyser Tower.

* Sitting on the south rim of the stadium bowl is a new press box, The Tyser Tower, also constructed in the spring and summer of 1991. Containing five tiers, it is a 90 foot high, 160 foot long, mostly-enclosed structure. The total spent on the 1990-1991 construction was $13.2 million; $3.4 million was spent on the Press Box.

The first level contains entrances at opposite ends for two elevators that service the building; sitting between these support areas are 300 exterior luxury seats. Occupants will enjoy the electric air of the crowd, but inherit the benefits of heated seating and a roof to ward 'f inclement weather.

The second level contains The Hospitality Suite with theater-type seating, and a large hospitality and food preparation area. Both sides of the press box, facing the field and facing the campus, have glass walls allowing for a bright interior and spacious feeling. The weekly football press luncheon is held here.

Byrd in 1950: Its original, classic lines have not be altered.

The third level is the working press area, containing 200 seats for the working media, and an additional closed area seating 20 for statistical work. There is also a hospitality area with food preparation services.

The fourth level is a mix of television and radio booths, coaches booths, and rooms for game management and invited guests.

The fifth level is a photo deck that has on its exterior a representation of the ubiquitous Testudo looking down on the field of play.

The Football Complex, Tyser Tower, concession stands, rest rooms, and stadium portals, designed by H-O-K Architects of Kansas City, are enclosed in sand-moulded Calvert #103 brick that matches the Williamsburg-style brick used on most of College Park's 335 buildings. The brick gives the contemporary architecture a timeless veneer, and unity with College Park's traditional Georgian look.

The Maryland Partnership

The $20.0 million spent thus far will be followed by funding to complete new concession stands and rest rooms on the west and north ends of the stadium, and the double-decking of the stadium's North Stands.

Maryland's architectural athletic revival is funded by the Maryland Partnership, a matching-gift program between the state and friends of Maryland Athletics.

The historic Byrd

Byrd Stadium has been home to national championship football and men's and women's lacrosse teams (the Terps won the Women's NCAA Lacrosse Championship in 1992), and to 56 Atlantic Coast Conference Track and Field team champions. It hosted the Queen of England at a football game in 1957, and was the stage where the greatest high hurdler in history, Renaldo Nehemiah, performed his wonders.

Last spring, Byrd hosted the Atlantic Coast Conference Men's Lacrosse Championship, the NCAA Women's Lacrosse Championship, and the Men's NCAA Lacrosse Championship. In May, 1989 every attendance record in lacrosse was broken when over 44,000 watched the NCAA Final Four of men's lacrosse.

Many of the great moments in Maryland prep school history happened there, as well as the Special Olympics and the Maryland State Games. Byrd Stadium is a Maryland tradition for the high school football coaches of the state who regularly hold their coaching clinic at College Park.

The stadium is named after Dr. H.C. Byrd, who was a multi-sport athlete as an undergraduate, later the head football coach, and later still the Maryland president. His vision gave College Park preminence among Eastern campus sports facilities for decades, and the impetus for the Terrapins to win more ACC championships than any league school.

With on-going refurbishment of the stadium capacity is at 42,000. Eventually all bleachers at the top of the stadium bowl will be removed, and the North Side will have an upper-deck. When these projects are complete, the seating will be 48,000.

Both east and west views reveal a new stadium.

When built 41 years ago, the stadium was thought to be in a "first phase" of construction. Plans called for the eventual seating of 92,000 and the double-decking of the entire stadium.

1950: Byrd Stadium, at the foot of the campus's North Hill was completed. A home field school record 43,836 fans witnessed a victory over traditional rival Navy in the opening game, September 30. The original capacity was 34,680. Putting temporary bleachers around the top rim of the stadium and in the end zone boosted the capacity to 50,000.

1952: Maryland had but three home games; the cost of season tickets ranged from $11.25 to $35.75.

1953: Byrd hosted the National Championship Team.

1957: Queen Elizabeth II visited for the North Carolina game, and the return of Jim Tatum to the scene of his coaching triumphs. The Royal Visit produced an upset 21-7 victory by Maryland. Coach Tommy Mont said later that this was his finest moment as coach.

1974: Bear Bryant returned to College Park with his Number Three Ranked Alabama Crimson Tide on September 14. Temporary bleachers were installed for the second time in stadium history to accomodate 54,412, the largest crowd until that time at Byrd. Alabama won, 21-16. Later in the season on October 11, the second largest crowd (49,674) in Byrd history watched the Number 15 Ranked Terps defeat Number 17 Ranked N.C. State, 20-10. The home team was inspired by film clips of Wolfpack taunting following 1973's encounter. Maryland averaged 37,995 fans per game, a record.

1975: On November 1, the attendance record was set at Byrd as Number 9 Ranked Penn State defeated the Number 14 Ranked Terps, 15-13. The crowd was 58,973. Maryland's average attendance was a record 42,359.

1983: The second largest crowd in Byrd Stadium, 54,715, witnessed the Number 17 Ranked Terps lose to West Virginia, 31-21 on September 17.

1985: The Terps, who were ranked number one in the pre-season by Sport Magazine, set the all-time high attendance record, averaging 51,546 for six home games.

1990: Construction was begun following the last home football game of the season against Wake Forest (Oct. 13) on the first major athletic construction on campus in 35 years. The Byrd Stadium refurbishment is the first major construction done at Maryland College Park without the oversight of Curley Byrd

Welcome to Maryland

President William E. Kirwan

"On behalf of the entire campus community, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you to the University of Maryland at College Park. College Park enjoys a long and proud history of excellence in intercollegiate athletics. Under the leadership of Coach Duffner and his fine staff, this season promises to be one of our most exciting on record.

"Having played football as a student/athlete, I certainly appreciate the commitment necessary to participate and excel in a varsity sport. It is this sense of commitment to achievement and excellence that characterizes College Park's varied athletic and academic programs. I am extremely proud of the fine athletes who represent College Park.

"College Park deserves your support for many reasons. The tradition of excellence of our athletic programs is one cause for great pride. Our academic excellence is another. The state's designation of the University as its flagship campus results from our impressive academic achievement.

"By every standard of measurement, the academic quality of College Park has grown dramatically over the past decade. We compare favorably with the nation's finest universities in, among other areas, the number of National Merit and National Achievement Scholars, the number of honors students, the distinguished records of graduates, competitively awarded research grants, and the honors and prizes won by faculty.

"We are indebted to you for the support that has made possible our athletic and academic accomplishments. We invite your continued partnership as College Park strives to set new standards of excllence both on the field and in the classroom."

Leading the Charge!

Mark Duffner charges through life, and his football philosophy ("You can't stand still if you're charging.") is reflected in how his teams play the game.

Appointed head coach at Maryland on December 31, 1991, 18 months later he still isn't standing still. In his first month on the job he assembled the best crop of recruits in recent years and a staff that would allow for a wholesale rewriting of the Maryland recordbook. He spent 1992 spring practice installing whole new on-field, all-out philosophies on both sides of the ball. Off the field, he changed the way Maryland's student-athletes looked at themselves, and at football. GPAs skyrocketed as did commitment to weight training and to a 10 point team constitution that insisted student-athletes achieve on and off the field.

By the time Duffner's first team hit refurbished Byrd Stadium out of its new Football Complex, everyone knew something special was going on. Maryland football was not in a transition stage ("You can't be in transition if you're charging.") so much as a sprint to getting better.

Maryland charged from the gate by leading nationally ranked Virginia, N.C. State and West Virginia well into the fourth quarter of each game, only to lose. Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, North Carolina: teams headed for bowls or nationally ranked teams made narrow escapes.

Then there were the victories. Pittsburgh fell in an offensive, record-setting onslaught; Duke lost when Maryland went 87 yards in the final 13 seconds for a TD; and Clemson was rocked by the greatest Maryland aerial blitz in history.

Going beyond the 3-8 record revealed:

Maryland led in the second half in all but one ACC game; and in all but one league game could easily have won as lost.

Maryland was ready to play, every game. Nothing was ever left on the field. To make sure the preparation was fun, Duffner hosted opposing mascots at practice, performed magic tricks to break the routine, and was always ready to laugh at himself. After each game he cried, win or lose.

Maryland set 27 school records with its Run and Shoot Offense: 16 individual records (six game, nine season, one career), and 11 team records (two game, 10 season). The Run and Shoot is perfect for Duffner: "You can't charge upfield if you're in a huddle."

No team in Maryland history gained more yards (5,131) and only five other teams in the 100 years of football at Maryland scored more (292 points).

Twice in three weeks Sports Illustrated awarded its Offensive Player of the Week award to Maryland's John Kaleo (Pittsburgh) and Marcus Badgett (Duke).

Maryland shattered the Atlantic Coast Conference recordbook, setting three individual league records and five team offensive records.

The top five games in number of pass completions in school history were in 1992, as well as the first four games in passing yards, the top TD passing game, and four of the top seven games for individual receivers.

In the last two weeks of the season, Maryland accomplished the biggest turnaround in school history: from a 69-21 loss to 53-23 victory, a swing of 78 points ("You can't get down when you're charging.").

Duffner charged into the post-season, garnering the best recruiting class in a decade at Maryland.

If the future holds anything like Duffner's past, then it will be full, indeed. He came to Maryland as college football's winningest coach, having compiled a 60-5-1 record (.916 winning percentage) at Holy Cross in six years as head coach. His legend preceded his first game: He took over in Worcester on a cold February day in 1986 just after his friend and head coach, Rick Carter, took his own life. Duffner's positive attitude and leadership blew away tragedy, and when the season came, the opposition. Holy Cross, 4-6-1 in 1985, won 10 of eleven games in Duffner's first season, and the success never slowed.

Duffner's Crusade

Although Duffner seemed to flash across the football sky, going from assistant to 10-1 master of the game, his rise was based on the solidity of self-discipline, the work ethic, and experiences derived from playing for and working with some of football's best.

Born in Washington, D.C., he grew up in Annandale, Va., just a football throw from College Park. A graduate of Annandale High School, he matriculated at William and Mary where he earned three letters as a defensive tackle, and was named Southern Conference All-Academic. He was recruited to come to Williamsburg by Bobby Ross and once there he played for Lou Holtz.

He wasted no time after graduation pursuing a coaching career. He was a graduate assistant at Ohio State for two years under Woody Hayes, defensive coordinator at the University of Cincinnati for four seasons, and he went to Holy Cross in 1981 as defensive coordinator and recruiting coordinator.

When his chance to run a college footall team came, Duffner at 32 years of age was ready.

A Welcome to a (Red Hot) Maryland from Mark Duffner

"There was a lot of excitement around College Park during football season a year ago. Maryland broke 35 team and ACC offensive records, running and shooting its way to respectability. The Terps hung in until the end of almost every game, and everyone who saw us felt they had seen a team give everything it had on the field of play.

"I know that effort will continue. When I came to Maryland, I remarked on how exciting Terrapin tradition is to me. Early-on in life I got involved in reading and hearing about the Terps; I grew up just across the Potomac. That tradition demands that this year's group of Maryland student-athletes keep going all-out, that the coaches and players don't ever leave anything on the field. Football at Maryland is a long-time success because of a lot of hard work by a lot of people. They worked like crazy to make success happen, and I intend to do the same.

"A big part of the Maryland tradition is the color red. It's our theme this year: Red Hot. Great teams have worn red here, like the teams of Jim Tatum, Bobby Ross and Jerry Claiborne. We hope to proclaim our red as effectively and as excellently as they did, to produce a program where red can be worn proudly."

Energy for People
(An interview with Mark Duffner)

Why are you so demonstrative?
I like enthusiasm, I like people who show emotion. It helps me to get my point across. It helps reality—it helps me express me, and my opinion. I want everything we do to be real and not something that is phony, or that it is just taking up time. Being demonstrative helps express what we've accomplished.

How do you get so much into a day (A Duffner day is somewhere beyond 24 hours)?
I just think that if you enjoy what you do, you can do a lot. I love dealing with people, and this is a great people job — I've just got energy for people. I couldn't stand being alone. So getting it done is trying to be as organized as you can be, and the Good Lord gave me an energy that has a good pace. We just try to get it all done.

When did you determine that a family atmosphere was so important in building a football program?
I sensed way back when I was playing that for an athlete in any team sport to be successful everybody has to contribute, and to care about one another. There couldn't be a selfish attitude because that detracted from the effort. So as a player in athletics I know that when we had our best teams people were committed to one another and to the goal of the team. Our best teams were those that were very, very close knit, and cared about one another. I was fortunate to be on some teams that were that way, and always thought if I had the chance to develop a program that would be the foundation.

You invited the alumni to come back to play in your spring practice game. Is this part of building an extended football family?
We've worked at building an extended family in a number of ways — we had a great spring. (San Diego Charger) Coach Bobby Ross came back to talk to the region's high school coaches. We wanted to bring back success and tie it into what we are doing now. We had the alumni back who contributed so much to this program and its tradition, people like Jerry Claiborne. We shared stories, put names to faces. Just to have them back cheering us was excellent — it's what it is all about for graduates of a football program. We had a Football Day this spring where 400 youth came down for a half-day of fellowship with our players and staff. There was football instruction and attitude instruction. I want our team to take responsibility and share with others.

What is the most important aspect of turning football around at Maryland?
I think there is one key word, "attitude." It is the component that drives everything. We want to be positive, we want to be productive, we want to be team-oriented. The greatest power we have is the power to choose. We all have the right to choose to have a good attitude or a bad attitude, and we need to have a lot of great attitudes, very, very positive in terms of our program at Maryland.

Beyond the results on the scoreboard, what is the most rewarding athletic experience for you?
To see our players play hard, and to utilize their abilities to the fullest. When you see kids improve, when you see them know they have had success on individual plays, or they know they have worked hard and are able to make big plays — again utilizing their potential to its highest as athletes. It is very enjoyable for me to see them enjoy success, to become confident people, to become aggressive with confidence—I don t mean aggressive in terms of hurting people, but being able to let to fly in terms of playing as hard as they can.

the way for you to [illegible] people?

[illegible] is the number one way. I [illegible] have a difficult time, without [illegible] to touch so many people, and to make things special. The people who have had the greatest impact on my life are my parents and my coaches, the way they taught me about what hard work was about, and what accomplishing things was all about. Because I was so moved by these people I wanted to have the same kind of effect on others.

What is your ideal workout?
I know I've had a great workout when I sweat. I jog, but I'm mostly retired when it comes to weightlifting. I like to sweat; I know I've had a good workout when I've sweated. One of life's great feelings is that shower after a workout.

Is the shower after a workout like the locker room after a win?
There is nothing like a locker room after victory. Just to see the emotions and feelings shared, the satisfaction and sense of accomplishment — That is the best of all time.

Win or lose, you seem emotionally high in the locker room after a game. What goes through your mind then?
I feel better if I've gotten to each player, to each coach, and express personally what my feelings are. I want them to think positively about our effort, and to encourage them, and to set a tone for the next challenge we have. I don't want them ever to go out of the locker room without me saying something to each of them. It is just very important to me to get to them, to express my feelings, to tell them how much I appreciate their hard work, and to read their feelings.

Do you like recruiting?
I love recruiting. It's a people filled job—you get a chance to meet families, coaches, administrators, student-athletes. Our mission is to make our own family the best. This is a chance for us, in a manner of speaking, to adopt, to adopt the best to make our family better. You learn so much trying to find out about people, what makes this person special, why we should be recruiting this person. To see all the contributing factors that allowed this person to achieve in the classroom and as a player. It's as intriguing as the devil—I love to study people and the stories of their success, and non-success. It's like seeing a great movie all the time. The emotions, the feelings — you get a chance to experience them in real life in recruiting.

What are the team academic goals?
Our goal is to obviously have people graduate, but beyond that goal is to have each person maximize their potential in the classroom. Sure, I would like to have a team of all 3.0's or 4.0's, but if a 3.0 is the best somebody can do, terrific; if a 2.0 is the best somebody can do, terrific. We want to create an environment that leads to academic thirst, a knowledge thirst if you will—for our student-athletes to go after the best they can be in the classroom. A 2.0 or a 3.0 is not as important as the fact that they really desire an education, and understand academic development.

Where did the idea for your team constitution come from?
From our coaching staff. John Baxter (Running backs/special team's coach) had a lot of input into it in terms of us having some sort of way to state our values. John was instrumental in recognizing this, as well as the rest of the staff. Everybody authored and signed into the constitution. It is something we talk about, and make sure we follow through on.

What does it feel like to touch the Terrapin's nose before the game?
When I touch that thing I know that this is it—'this is what it's all about' goes through your mind. It's an energy filled experience, really; you come out and see a filled stadium and the pre-game festivities—Now I really know it's game time at Maryland!

What is your professional goal?
I love coaching—working with kids, working with coaches. My goal is to be the best coach I can be. When I was a young man, about 24, I was at Cincinnati and I thought I had to be in that position for three years and move up the ladder. But then I got to Holy Cross and I really just enjoyed working with teams and people to make them the best they could be. I could have stayed in that capacity of assistant the rest of my life, and felt really good about it. I'm not caught up in the career planning—there is just too much to do to sit around and career plan. My goal is take each day and do the best with it I can. When all is said and done, I'll know I did the best I could.

Dan Dorazio

Offensive Coordinator Offensive Line

If anyone doubted that Dan Dorazio's offensive scheme would be as successful at Maryland as it had been during his record setting stint as offensive coordinator at Holy Cross, then make a close inspection of the Terps' 1992 statistics.

With Dorazio calling the offensive plays last year, the Terps Run-and-Shoot offense exploded for a 5,131 yards, eight ACC records and 32 school records.

Incredibly, it was the second consecutive year that Dorazio had orchestrated an offense to more than 5,000 total yards. Nationally, the Terps finished second in passing offense and fourth in total offense in 1992.

Not that these type of numbers should come as a surprise.

In his first year as offensive coordinator at Holy Cross in 1991, the Crusaders averaged 467.1 total yards per game, 33.8 points per game and had a perfect 11-0 record. Maryland averaged a school-record 466.5 yards per game last season.

In addition to his duties as offensive coordinator, Dorazio is one of the most respected developers of offensive linemen in the country. He coached that position at several schools, including the University of Washington, where he oversaw the progress of All-America Mike Zandofsky. At Holy Cross, Dorazio's linemen routinely dominated the All-Patriot League listings.

Prior to joining Mark Duffner's Holy Cross staff, Dorazio was at Washington for five years, during which time he coached teams in four Bowl games. Dorazio also has some previous experience in the Atlantic Coast Conference, having coached at Georgia Tech from 1982-83. He got his coaching start at Kent State, his alma mater, where he began coaching as an undergraduate after playing football for the Golden Flashes for two years.

A native of Stow, Ohio, Dorazio graduated from Kent State in 1974 with a degree in Education. He has done significant post-graduate work toward a master's degree in sports administration. Dorazio has a son, Daniel, and a daughter, Marisa.

Larry Slade

Defensive Coordinator Defensive Backs

The man who regularly coached defensive backs into the National Football League and directed a potent secondary that led its team to a national title is the Terps' defensive coordinator and defensive backs coach, Larry Slade.

Beginning his second season at the helm of the Maryland defense, Slade is looking to forge the Terps' secondary into the high-octane unit that he coached at the University of Washington, where he helped coach a National Championship Team in 1991 and directed one of the country's best secondaries.

Slade's desire to revamp the Terps' secondary was apparent from the early season last year, when he made two newcomers — Mike Lacy and Gene Green — his starting cornerbacks. This past spring, several more newcomers saw action in the secondary, and tremendous improvements seemingly were made there on a daily basis.

Slade has a reputation as an outstanding technician, who consistently gets the utmost from his players. He certainly did at Washington, where six years of coaching defensive backs resulted in five players being drafted into the NFL. In 1991, on way to an 11-0 record and a share of the national title, the Huskies' defense was ranked second in the country in total defense and scoring defense. Slade's secondary was a major reason why UW's passing efficiency defense was third-best in the nation.

In 1990, Slade coached All-Pac-10 cornerback Charles Mincy and in 1991 Dana Hall was an All-Pac-10 pick and a first round selection in the NFL Draft.

A 1973 graduate of Shepherd (WV) College, Slade earned his bachelor of science in biology with a concentrated minor in English. He was a two-time All-West Virginia offensive guard at Shepherd in 1970-71 and earned honorable mention Little All-America honors in 1971. He was the Most Valuable Lineman of the 1971 Civitan Bowl and led Shepherd to league titles in 1972 and 1973. He went on to begin his coaching career at Shepherd and was a part of the football staff there for the next 10 years.

Coaching at Maryland is a return to the East for Slade and his family Besides his coaching stint at Shepherd, Slade coached previously at Richmond and Howard.

Slade is married to the former Izetta Owens. The couple has three children: Herbie, Roshawn, and Lyndsey.

John Baxter

Assistant Coach
Running Backs
Special Teams Coordinator

If there is a coach on the Maryland staff that rivals Head Coach Mark Duffner in the area of emotional intensity it's John Baxter, the Terps' running backs coach and coordinator of special teams.

Baxter's tank of energy is never empty. Despite suffering through one of the most trying seasons a coach could image — Maryland lost its top three rushers to injury last year and saw its next-best available back split time on defense — Baxter never let the adversity deter him.

Seemingly forced to make line-up changes on a weekly basis because of the injuries, Baxter developed new talent. He took tight end Frank Wycheck and turned him into a five-yards-a-carry rusher. He coached Raphael Wall — a sometimes running back, sometimes strong safety — into an elusive runner as both a tailback and kick returner.

Despite losing back Kameron Williams in preseason, Mark Mason, among the nation's leading rushers in the country when he got hurt, in the fifth game and Larry Washington for most of the year with injuries, the Terps still managed 136.6 yards a game on the ground.

Baxter joined the Terps' staff after a successful two-year stint at Arizona, where his special teams were consistently ranked among the Pac-10's best. In 1991, Arizona led the Pac-10 in kickoff returns, averaging 22.8 yards a return, and was second in the league in kickoff return coverage (17.1 ypr) and punt return (11.2 ypr). In 1990, UA led the conference in kickoff coverage and was second in kickoff returns.

A native of Chicago, Baxter was an undergraduate coach for four years at Loras (Iowa) College. He coached running backs from 1981-83 and quarterbacks and receivers in 1984-85. After earning his bachelor's degree in physical education from Loras in 1985, he moved on to Iowa State, where he earned his master's degree while serving as a graduate assistant under Jim Criner in 1986 and Jim Walden in 1987.

Prior to going to Arizona in 1990, Baxter was for one year the recruiting coordinator, outside linebackers coach and special teams coach at the University of Maine. The Black Bears won the Yankee Conference title that season, compiled a 9-3 overall record and advanced to the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

Baxter is married to the former Jill McBride, who is the daughter of University of Utah football coach Ron McBride.

Clyde Christensen

Assistant Coach
Quarterbacks

In his first year as quarterbacks coach at Maryland, Clyde Christensen helped add another chapter to the storied history of Terps signal callers.

Christensen monitored the development of John Kaleo last season, coaching the diminutive quarterback to the most heralded offensive season in ACC history. Kaleo set five individual game school records and five season marks. He accumulated 3,392 yards of total offense, which was the second most by a player in ACC annals. His 315.6 yards per game was the second best total in the country.

Kaleo was the MVP of the Blue-Gray All-Star Game last December.

Christensen came to Maryland after one season as the running backs coach at South Carolina, but prior to that he had worked with Terp Coach Mark Duffner's Run and Shoot offense at Holy Cross. Christensen was on Duffner's HC staff in 1989 and 1990, calling the offensive shots for teams that had a combined record of 19-2-1. Christensen coached receivers and tight ends in his first year at Holy Cross, before being promoted to offensive coordinator for the 1990 campaign.

Christensen certainly knows something of the quarterback position in this league. He played the position for North Carolina, leading two of the Tar Heels most successful teams. A native of Corvina, Calif., Christensen directed the Tar Heels in the 1976 Peach Bowl and the 1977 Liberty Bowl. He was a junior college All-America quarterback at Fresno City College before enrolling at UNC. He earned his degree from Carolina in 1979.

He began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Mississippi in 1979 and moved on to become offensive coordinator and quarterbacks/running backs coach at East Tennessee State in 1980-82. He coached at Temple from 1983-85 and at East Carolina from 1986-88 before joining Duffner's Crusaders' staff. At ECU, Christensen coached on both sides of the ball — working with the quarterbacks and outside linebackers.

Christensen and his wife, Debbie, have three children: Rebecca, Rachel and Ruth.

Mel Foels

Assistant Coach
Inside Linebackers

In 25 years of college coaching, Mel Foels has established a reputation for developing outstanding defensive units with few star players.

Foels however did tutor great players. While an assistant at North Carolina, he directed the college career of probably the greatest linebacker in ACC history — Lawrence Taylor.

But Taylor was the exception, not the rule. More often, Foels has taken hardworking, over-achieving players and developed their talents within a team concept.

Certainly that will be Foels' charge this season as he begins his second year with the inside linebackers in Maryland's defensive alignment. Gone from last year's squad is team captain Mike Jarmolowich, who signed as a free agent with the San Francisco 49ers.

In his place, Foels will work tri-captain Chad Wiestling, a converted tight end, and Tim Brown and Erick Wood, the only two returnees with any appreciable experience at inside linebacker, with several young players. It will be a unit forged on depth and determination, much like he has developed throughout his quarter-century in the profession.

Foels lists many of the country's historical football powers on his impressive professional resume. At Arizona State, where he coached in 1990 and 1991, he guided the Pac-10's second-leading defense in 1991. From 1984-89, he coached outside linebackers at Tennessee, and before that he was the linebackers coach at North Carolina, where Taylor was his star pupil. In Foels' four years at UNC, the Tar Heels compiled a 37-11 record and won four consecutive bowl games.

A native of Toledo, Ohio, Foels graduated from Bowling Green in 1965 and received his master's degree from the school in 1966. He played guard and linebacker for the Falcons from 1961-64.

Foels began his coaching career as an assistant at Iowa Wesleyan College in 1966. He took over the head coaching position the next year and guided IWC to four Prairie Conference titles. He was the league Coach of the Year three times.

Foels and his wife, Dawn, have two daughters, Tracie and Shellie.

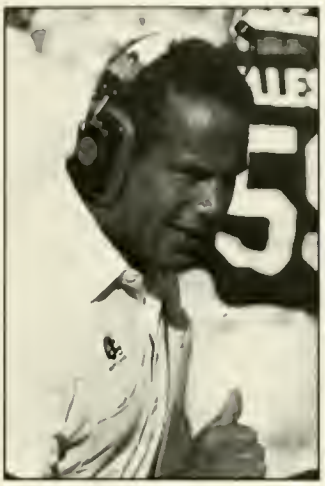
Peter McCarty

Assistant Coach
Outside Linebackers



In the Terps' attacking style of defense, the outside linebackers may end up being the most active players on the field. And that is just the way outside linebacker coach Pete McCarty wants it.

One of five imports from Mark Duffner's final Holy Cross staff to come with the head coach to Maryland, McCarty seems to revel in a state of constant motion. His energy certainly was evident during the first season of the Duffner era. McCarty's corps of linebackers were among the most active of any unit on defense.

There were assignments made and assignments missed during that first developmental season, but every play was executed with 100 percent effort. That is the type of effort that McCarty demands — from his players and himself.

When not coaching on the field, he has been known to spend hours watching film. Preparation helps win football games and McCarty and his troops are nothing if not prepared

McCarty has always been a hard worker At Holy Cross, he held three distinct positions — coaching the Crusader's defensive ends, acting as the professional scout liaison and serving as the team's academic coordinator. On the field, he oversaw the development of a group of ends that included Tom Smith, a 1988 All-America and the Crusader's single-season sack co-record holder with 16. In fact, in his last two years at HC, McCarty's defensive ends combined to register 38 sacks.

A Bangor, Me. native, McCarty was an All-East, All-New England and All-Yankee Conference linebacker at Massachusetts. He was the 1977 UMass co-captain for a team that advanced to the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

After graduating from Massachusetts in 1978, he returned to his hometown to coach at Bangor High School. He then moved to Maine Central Institute in nearby Pittsfield, Me.

In 1981, McCarty joined the staff at Syracuse as a graduate assistant. While earning his master's degree in physical education, McCarty was a defensive coach and chief scout for the Orangemen. From Syracuse, McCarty went to American International College, where he served as defensive coordinator from 1983 to 1986, when he joined Duffner's Holy Cross staff.

McCarty is single.

Cliff Schwenke

Assistant Coach
Defensive Line

Upon accepting the head coaching position at Maryland, Mark Duffner, known as one of the country's most innovative offensive coaches, first laid the ground work for a successful Terrapin defense.

In selecting numerous members of his Holy Cross staff to join him in College Park, Duffner made sure that defensive line coach Cliff Schwenke made the move south. Schwenke, as interior defensive line coach for the Crusaders, oversaw a unit that led the Patriot League in rushing defense, scoring defense and total defense for five consecutive seasons.

Those Holy Cross lines featured some of the biggest, strongest, fastest linemen in the Patriot League. And based on Maryland's recruiting in 1993, Schwenke may be coaching one of the biggest defensive lines in the ACC before too long.

The Terps signed five players this winter who are all at least 6-5 and 285 pounds and will be given an early look along the defensive front.

While those newcomers mature, however, Schwenke will take a veteran defensive line into the 1993 season, anchored by returning starter Jim Panagos at nose tackle and team tri-captain Mark Sturdivant at end.

As defensive line coach at Holy Cross, Schewenke helped develop a unit that produced two All-Americans — middle guard Steve Southard (second team, 1986) and tackle Andy Martin (third team, 1987) — and several All-Patriot League performers. He also doubled as the HC recruiting coordinator. In that position, he oversaw the recruitment of six seasons worth of student athletes that helped the Crusaders to a 60-5-1 overall won-loss record.

Prior to joining on for his second stint at Holy Cross in 1986 — he also coached there from 1978-81. Schwenke served in various coaching capacities at Brigham Young, William & Mary, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Columbia and Boston College.

A 1973 graduate of the University of Bridgeport, Schwenke was an All-East linebacker and captain of the UB team that went 11-0 and won the 1972 Knute Rockne Bowl. A native of Amsterdam, N.Y., Schwenke has two children: David and Anne.

John Shannon

Assistant Coach
Outside Receivers

As offensive coordinator at the University of Pacific in 1990 and 1991, John Shannon directed the Tigers' Run and Shoot offense to record-setting numbers. In 1992, as the outside receivers coach at Maryland, Shannon again harnessed the explosiveness of the Run and Shoot to help the Terps' receiving corps turn in a record-breaking season.

In his first season at Maryland, Shannon developed the talents of Marcus Badgett to the point where he caught a conference record 75 catches and was named first team All-ACC. Badgett hauled in an incredible 112.7 yards per game in receptions, which obliterated the school record and was second-best in the nation. Badgett also set the school record for reception yards in a game with 251 against Pittsburgh. Badgett became the only player in ACC history to record two 200-yard receiving games in a single season.

None of these records surprised Shannon, who has been extolling the possibilities of this extraordinary offense for several years.

In 1991, under Shannon's play calling, UOP ranked first in the country in touchdown passes (42), second in total offense (511.25 yards per game), third in passing offense (342.80 yards per game) and seventh in scoring (36.3 points per game).

Shannon directed an offense that, for the first time in NCAA history, produced a 3,500-yard passer (Troy Kopp), a 1,500-yard receiver (Aaron Turner) and a 1,500-yard rusher (Ryan Benjamin) in a single season. Benjamin, in fact, was the first player in NCAA history to rush for 1,500 yards and catch at least 50 passes.

During his coaching tenure at Pacific and at the University of Richmond before that, five of Shannon's wideouts earned All-America honors.

A native of Bowling Green, Ky., Shannon attended Eastern Illinois University. He played defensive back for the Panthers and graduated in 1976 with a bachelor's degree in physical education. He began his coaching career in 1977 as the tight end coach at Western Kentucky, from which he earned his master's degree in education in 1978.

In 1978, he was named defensive coordinator at Maryville College and stayed on that side of the ball for two years at Maryville and two seasons as defensive coordinator at Wayne State. In 1982, he was named offensive coordinator at Morehead State, where in two years his teams set 14 game passing records, and his reputation as one of the bright, young offensive minds in the game was established.

Shannon is married to the former Sally Partain, and the couple has three sons, Justin, Benjamin and Colby.

Rob Spence

Assistant Coach Inside Receivers

In his first year as the inside or slot receivers coach at Maryland, Rob Spence oversaw a unit that was a main reason for the Terps' record-setting offense

Outside receiver Marcus Badgett earned the individual honors, and quarterback John Kaleo garnered the accolades associated with the sport's highest profile position, but game-in and game-out, Spence's slot receivers continued to post huge numbers.

Maryland's starting inside receivers, Richie Harris and Dan Prunzik, combined for 108 catches and 1198 receiving yards. Harris, with 56 catches, and Prunzik, with 52, were second and third, respectively, in the ACC in catches last season

With those two stars graduated, Spence will put out on the field this year a unit of receivers dominated by freshmen and sophomores. He nevertheless expects the same kind of numbers, because everywhere he has coached, whether dealing with experienced players or relative newcomers, Spence has developed talent.

One of five coaches to make the move with Mark Duffner to Maryland, Spence spent his last season at HC guiding record-setting quarterback Tom Ciaccio, the MVP of the Patriot League. As quarterbacks coach, Spence molded the trigger men for the Crusaders, the only unbeaten team in I-AA in 1991. Holy Cross finished fourth in the country in total offense (467 yards per game) and ninth in passing offense (292 yards per game) under Spence's guidance.

Before going to Holy Cross in 1991, Spence was the offensive coordinator and receivers coach at Hofstra University, where he kept the Flying Dutchmen in flight. Hofstra led Division III in points (472), passing (343.2 yards per game) and total offense (505.7 yards per game) and set the Division III record for scoring margin at 38.2 points a game.

A 1981 graduate of Iona College, Spence played tight end for the Gaels. He began his coaching career at Iona Prep, where he was offensive coordinator from 1982-84, before being named head coach. He spent five years as head coach, compiling a 29-19-1 record, before moving on to become offensive coordinator at his alma mater in 1989.

Marcus Badgett not only rewrote the Maryland and Atlantic Coast Conference recordbooks in receiving a year ago, but he also made first team Academic All-Atlantic Coast Conference.

Todd Hobin

Video Coordinator

Beginning his second year as the football staff's video coordinator, Todd Hobin oversees an area that encompasses the latest in technical innovation.

Inside the Terps' new football team building is a state-of-the-art video editing lab that also doubles as Hobin's office. With computerized editing equipment, Hobin can break down game and practice video in any number of ways. If a coach wants a tape of just "third-and-long" plays, Hobin can dub it quickly. If the defensive coaches want to only watch plays where their defense was set in a particular formation, he creates that tape immediately.

This creative editing is available because Hobin and his staff work tirelessly during games and practices chronicling every situation. Every play that is video taped is coded by computer so that the special tapes can be edited after each game.

Hobin knows what he is doing — on both sides of the camera. While he handles only video responsibilities at Maryland, he has extensive experience as a football coach. He was for three years on the football staff at Cornell University, helping the Big Red to the 1990 Ivy League Championship. He helped coach the quarterbacks and running backs on that team and served as the freshman team's offensive coordinator.

Prior to coaching at Cornell, he was for two years on the staff at Ithaca as an assistant defensive backs coach and a defensive coordinator for the junior varsity. Ithaca won the 1988 Division III National Championship with Hobin on the staff.

A native of Holland Patent, N.Y., Hobin graduated cum laude from Cortland State. He was a three-year letterwinner at running back and punter for the Red Dragons. He also attended Hamilton College for one year, where he was the team's starting free safety.

Hobin and his wife, Candice, are expecting their first child this December.

Jim Miceli

Recruiting Coordinator

Jim Miceli, who has recorded a long history of success in Eastern football on the collegiate and prep levels, was named recruiting coordinator in June.

Miceli, 36, was at the University of Pittsburgh last fall where he coached tight ends and coordinated goal line, short yardage and option game plans in the high powered Panther scheme. He was also the football staff member responsible for many of the academic programs for football players. In mid-winter, he moved to Wisconsin as assistant recruiting coordinator for a period of three months before being appointed at College Park.

Miceli, a 1979 Southern Connecticut State graduate, began his college coaching career as a graduate assistant at Pittsburgh (1980-1982). He moved to Norwalk (Conn.) High School in 1983 where he served three years as head coach, and then to Old Tappan (N.J.) High School where he was head coach for two years. Both schools enjoyed championship success during his tenure.

In 1983, Miceli moved to Ramapo (N.J.) College where in four years he recorded a 31-9 record as head coach, and earned the Roadrunners E.C.A.C. post-season honors. He was selected Coach of the Year in the New Jersey Athletic Conference in 1989, and among his athletes two earned All-America honors and seven all-ECAC honors. Ramapo had won but one of its previous 30 games before Miceli's management.

A native of Rye, N.Y., Miceli was an all-league offensive lineman on the prep level before enrolling at Southern Connecticut where he won two letters. He is married to the former Mariann Brunetti; they have two daughters, Victoria and Alexandra.

Bruce Warwick

Administrative Assistant

Handling the day-to-day, non-football operations for Coach Mark Duffner's staff is administrative assistant Bruce Warwick, who begins his second season with the Maryland program.

The administrative assistant oversees a variety of duties, including organizing all team travel, serving as the football staff coordinator between the University's academic community and the student-athletes, and administering all special events hosted by the football staff, including clinics, summer camps, and the like.

Warwick may have one of the most difficult jobs on the entire University of Maryland campus — keeping Duffner, who constantly tries to cram 48 hours of activity into a 24-hour day, on schedule.

Warwick came to Maryland after one season as the administrative assistant and assistant recruiting coordinator at Syracuse University, where he worked under Head Coach Paul Pasqualoni. In that capacity, he kept the Orangemen staff updated on all NCAA rules changes, maintained all student-athlete eligibility paperwork, coordinated Coach Pasqualoni's schedule, assisted with facilities arrangements, recruiting and many other essential football-related operations.

A 1989 graduate of Columbia College in Syracuse, Warwick was awarded a Bachelor of Arts in Business Administration. He earned a master's degree in sports management from the United States Sports Academy

While an undergraduate student, prior to getting involved with athletics, Warwick served in various capacities for the MONY Federal Credit Union in Syracuse, eventually reaching the position of staff auditor in 1989. In 1990, he was elected to the Board of Directors of the Credit Union.

A native of Baldwinsville, N.Y., Warwick, 26, married the former Cynthia DeBlaay this summer.

John Haller and Daryl Jones.

John Haller

Graduate Assistant Coach

Beginning his second season on the Terps' staff is graduate assistant coach John Haller.

Haller works primarily with Dan Dorazio and the offensive line as well as the scout team defense. He also is heavily involved in video breakdown of opponents defense and in preparing opponents scouting reports.

Prior to coming to Maryland, Haller was a graduate assistant at Frostburg (Md.) State for two seasons. At Frostburg, he was the defensive backfield coach and the defensive coordinator for the junior varsity in 1991 and the receivers coach and co-offensive coordinator in 1990. In 1991, Frostburg was the ECAC Southeast Champions, and Haller's defensive backs helped post the 20th-rated pass efficiency defense in the nation.

His offensive coordinator duties in 1990 helped the team to the ECAC South Championship, the No. 7 scoring offense in the country and a school record nine victories.

Haller currently is pursuing a master's degree in education administration at Maryland. He received his M.A. in business administration from Frostburg last summer. He earned his undergraduate degree with honors in economics and statistics from the University of Michigan in 1989.

Haller, 26, is single.

Daryl Jones

Graduate Assistant Coach

Also beginning his second year on the staff is graduate assistant coach Daryl Jones.

Jones works closely with Larry Slade in coaching the defensive backfield. He also is involved in all aspects of coaching the special teams, as well as on-campus recruiting, scouting and video breakdown.

This is the third college staff on which Jones has worked. Prior to coming to Maryland, he was the volunteer coach at Duke in 1991 and the volunteer coach at Hofstra in 1990. With the Blue Devils, he coached the defense and special teams. With the Flying Dutchmen he coached offense and special teams.

During the 1988 and 1989 seasons, Jones was an assistant football coach and head track coach at John Glenn High School on Long Island, NY.

A 1987 graduate of C.W. Post, Jones earned a Bachelor of Arts in political science and education. He also was a four-year letterwinner in football and track. Jones attended St. Johns High School in Ocala, Fla. He was a prep standout in football and track, winning the Florida State Pole Vault Championship in 1983.

Jones is currently pursuing his Master's degree in Educational Administration at Maryland and will earn his degree next spring.

Jones, 28, is single.

David Ungerer

Strength & Conditioning Coach

Dave Ungerer, the Terps' second-year head strength and conditioning coach, may have one of the most expansive offices on campus. Still, he has very little room to stretch out.

When the football team complex was completed last year, Ungerer moved his office into the spacious, 7,500-square foot weight room that takes up almost 25 percent of the new building. Shortly after moving his desk and chair into place, however, Ungerer oversaw the outfitting of the weight room with close to a quarter million dollars of state-of-the-art equipment.

The facility is now completely outfitted with the best weight equipment, and Ungerer's experience as one of the top strength specialists in the country insures that the Terps will be one of the nation's most physically strong teams.

Ungerer joined the Terps from Holy Cross, where in four years he was part of a staff that led the Crusaders to the winningest record in college football.

At Maryland, Ungerer oversees the strength and conditioning regimens for all 23 intercollegiate sports. He directly supervises the football program's strength progress, and coordinates each of the other team's workouts through a talented and effective staff. His commitment to the football program is total. In his first spring in College Park, several school record performances were set during the weight testing period associated with spring practice. This year, many of those records toppled. Ungerer's enthusiasm and ability to motivate in the weight room is legendary.

Prior to joining the Crusaders, Ungerer was the defensive line coach and strength coach at Davidson College in 1986-87. In 1985, he was the defensive line coach at Northeastern.

A native of Edison, N.J., Ungerer played running back and linebacker at Edison High School, rushing for more than 1,000 yards and earning all-Area honors. He then earned three varsity letters as a running-back at Southern Connecticut State. He received his Bachelor of Science in Physical Education from SCSU in 1980.

Ungerer, 36, is single.

Ungerer and Gene Green: Higher and higher go the strength and conditioning performances.

Dwight Galt

Assistant Coach Strength & Conditioning

Dwight Galt has been a member of the Maryland strength and conditioning staff for several years and now works primarily with the football team.

Galt was an assistant strength coach at Maryland in 1984 and 1985, and rejoined the staff prior to the 1989 football season.

Galt has a wide-ranging background in the field of strength and conditioning. He was the director of Frank Costello's Elite Training Center for several years, and he had worked extensively with the Washington Capitals of the National Hockey League on their preseason conditioning.

A graduate of Maryland, Galt received his Bachelor of Science in business and management in 1983. He earned his Master's of Science in exercise physiology from Maryland in 1989.

Like Ungerer, Galt's enthusiasm and encouragement of Maryland players in the weight room has met with tremendous success. The Maryland football team is stronger now than it has ever been.

Galt, 36, is married to the former Mary Janice Taylor. The couple has four children, Angie, Teri, Dwight IV, and Tom.

Dave Ungerer and Dwight Galt: Iron Terps.

At Maryland: Doak Walker Award nominee Selected a team tri-captain for his senior year . One of the most explosive backs playing major college football .. Has seen each of his two previous seasons cut drastically short by injuries, but he is completely healthy for the start of his senior campaign ... Suffered a shoulder injury in the fifth game ... Both seasons, he was leading the ACC in all-purpose yardage when he was lost for the year ... He is as hard-working and intense a player as there is on the team.

1992: Led the ACC in all-purpose yardage (178.0 yards a game) and ranked 8th in the NCAA before going down with an injury (fractured scapula of left shoulder) in fifth game of season ... He was second in the ACC rushing (129.0 yards a game) and 8th in the NCAA ... Had solid effort at Virginia but erupted in second week against N.C. State for 164 ground yards — the best performance by a Terrapin in three years running ball (he also had a special teams tackle) ... Chosen Coaches Offensive Player of the Week after that performance ... Followed that game up with another personal best at West Virginia with 167 yards ... Those two games were the best back-to-back performances by a Terp since Charlie Wysocki ran for 222 and 202 yards versus Louisville and Virginia in 1979 ... Went over 1,000 career yards in Morgantown .. Again chosen Maryland Coaches Player of Week (with Marcus Badgett) ... At Penn State he became the first runner to gain over 100 yards against the Nittany Lions since Notre Dame's Ricky Watters in 1990 (18 straight games) ... He became the first Maryland runner to gain over 100 yards in three straight games since Charlie Wysocki in 1980 ... First Maryland runner to gain more than 100 yards vs. Penn State since Wysocki in 1980 ... He injured his shoulder early in the Pittsburgh game.

1991: ACC leader in all-purpose yardage (452 ground yards + 76 yards receiving + 67 yards on kickoff returns) before injury ... Third in the ACC in rushing when injured ... Not since Charlie Wysocki in 1979 had a sophomore runner gained that kind of ground yardage through five games (Wysocki had 478 ground yards) .. Seventy-one yard TD against Syracuse career long Longest TD run in three seasons (Michael Beasley ran for 75 yard TD at West Virginia in 1988) Good receiver, second on team with 13 receptions for 76 yards when his season ended No one shut him down, even though he split playing time with several other backs .. Without injury, on track to become first sophomore to lead Maryland in rushing since Wysocki .. Broke right tibia early in third quarter of Tech game; if healthy would have surpassed personal record for yards in a game.

1990: Was not used extensively until last game of season vs. Virginia.

Maryland's first official football team was funded by a $10 athletic fee assessed to all of its 80 students. This funding did not include the purchase of headgear, so the players compensated by letting their hair grow long for protection.

The 1903 Aggies were not scored on at home while outscoring their opponents, 104-62.

Maryland Agriculture College was first and foremost a military school. This is the 1905 edition of the football Pearl and Maroon in their cadet dress.

The top individual highlight of the 1907 team was a 90-yard touchdown run by H.C. Byrd (holding football) against Gallaudet.

The Athletic Hall of Fame was founded in 1982 by the M Club Foundation as a joint project of the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics and the M Club. The first committee was organized by then Athletic Director Dick Dull and consisted of outstanding Terrapin athletes and coaches Jack Faber (Class of 1926), Tom Fields (Class of 1942), Al Heagy (Class of 1930), Jim Kehoe (Class of 1940) and Jack Scarbath (Class of 1952). Arthur L. Kramer (Class of 1942), a letterwinner in tennis, was particularly important in the founding of the Hall of Fame.

Among the qualifications for nominees are being out of school at least 10 years, having earned a minimum of one varsity letter, and if not an undergraduate athlete, being a Department of Intercollegiate Athletics staff member for at least 15 years. Nominees will be judged on personal conduct in life and their contributions to the high ideals of intercollegiate athletics.

A ballot for best pure athlete to play at Maryland would include Bill Guckeyson and Bosey Berger, sports stars of the first rank.

Randy White may be the best who ever played defensive tackle.

Jack Scarbath helped build Byrd Stadium as student, scored the first touchdown in it, quarterbacked Maryland to the top of collegiate football, and along the way epitomized what a student-athlete should be.

Jack Scarbath

National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame

Jack Scarbath is an integral part of Maryland football history. In his first start, the All-American quarterback scored the first touchdown in the new Byrd Stadium, a 21-yard run, in the first game of the 1950 season.

Scarbath was the quarterback for Head Coach Jim Tatum's new split T offense for three seasons (1950-1952). Scarbath led the Terps to a 24-4-1 record, including a perfect 10-0 record and Sugar Bowl victory in 1951. In that time, he rewrote the Terrapin record books. Scarbath completed 125 of 260 passes for 2287 yards, an average of 18.3 yards for every reception.

After his senior season, Scarbath finished runner-up to Oklahoma's Billy Vessels in the voting of the Heisman Trophy, was a first team All-American quarterback, and a first-round draft choice of the Washington Redskins. In 1983, he was inducted into the National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame.

Bob Ward

National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame

Bob Ward weighed all of 165 pounds throughout his four-year playing career at Maryland, and even in the early 1950s that was no size for a lineman. Especially a lineman who was a first-team All-American middle guard on defense as a junior in 1950, and a first-team offensive guard as a senior in 1951.

The forte of the Maryland teams of the early 1950s was consistency, a winning consistency. Bob Ward's four teams were a combined 32-7-1, winning two bowl games (1949 Gator over Missouri, 1951 Sugar over Tennessee to complete a perfect 10-0 season). And Bob Ward was the heart and soul of those teams.

The awards and honors earned by Bob Ward as a Maryland player belie physical stature, but speak volumes about the man. He was the MVP of the 1949 Gator Bowl, Maryland's first bowl victory. He was the only player ever to earn first team All-American honors as both an offensive and defensive position player. He earned Southern Conference Player of the Year honors as a senior and was chosen Lineman of the Year by the Washington Touchdown Club and the Philadelphia Sportswriters Association in 1951. Ward was elected into the National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame in 1980.

Jim Tatum

National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame

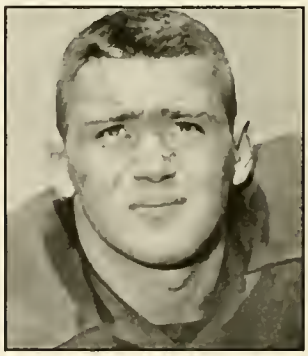
In a brief time as a college football head coach, one season at North Carolina (1942, 5-2-2), one at Oklahoma (1946, 8-3, Gator Bowl victory over North Carolina State), nine years at Maryland (1947-55, 73-15-4, 2-2-1 in bowl games), Jim Tatum had become a coaching legend.

Tatum's teams from 1950-1955 were 51-8-2, with a perfect 10-0 record and Sugar Bowl victory in 1951, and 10-0 regular season records in 1953 and 1955 before both teams were upset by Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Maryland's teams have yet to regain the national heights of Jim Tatum's teams of the early 1950s. Tatum left Maryland to coach his alma mater, North Carolina, in 1956. He was elected to the National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame in 1984.

Stan Jones

National Football League Hall of Fame



Stan Jones was the starting right tackle on the Terp defense that allowed only 31 points during 10 regular season games in 1953. With Jones leading the way, Maryland recorded six shutouts and allowed only one team, Georgia, to score more than six points. He earned All-American honors that season and was chosen "Outstanding College Lineman of 1953" by the College Football Coaching Board.

After his All-American career as a Terp, he served 13 years in the NFL. He played for the Chicago Bears for 12 seasons and finished his career as a Washington Redskin Jones was enshrined in the National Football League Hall of Fame on July 27, 1991.

"I was very prepared for the NFL when I left Maryland," Jones said. "From my coaches who taught me football to my professors who taught me anatomy, physiology and weight training, I received a great education. I couldn't have picked a better place to go — they picked me and there was not a better place to be."

Randy White

Lombardi and Outland Trophies Winner

Randy White changed the look of football's defensive lines. At Maryland, and later in an all-pro National Football League career with the Dallas Cowboys, he was regarded as the quickest defensive lineman to play the game. He could be in an opponent's backfield before a quarterback could make a handoff.

In 1974, Randy White cleaned up the awards plate. He was honored with the Outland and Lombardi Trophies as the top collegiate lineman, ACC Player of the Year, unanimous first team All-American, Delaware's (his home state) Athlete of the Year, and the Philadelphia Sportswriters' Amateur Athlete of the Year.

A first round draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys, the second player selected in the entire draft, White was an all-Pro performer throughout his career, and shared Super Bowl MVP honors with Dallas teammate Harvey Martin when the Cowboys defeated Denver in Super Bowl XII.

No one else will wear "94" at Maryland. Randy White's number has been retired

By Frank Bertucci

The name has almost always been a part of him.

"Little Mo"

Through three All-American years at Maryland, and 14 all-pro years in the National Football League, Dick Modzelewski was always Little Mo.

At 6-0, 235 pounds during his playing days at Maryland he was one of the bigger collegiate linemen of the early 1950s. But he was the second Mo at Maryland, so he had to be "Little" to his older brother Ed, "Big Mo."

"I wasn't sure about coming to Maryland after high school," Modzelewski said. "I was all set to go to the University of Cincinnati where Sid Gillman and Paul Dietzel were coaching. My brother Ed was at Maryland already (a year ahead of Dick), and I wanted to do things on my own, to show what I could do.

"But then my family got into it, and I realized it wouldn't be so bad. Jim Tatum and his assistants were super recruiters. They recruited a lot of us from western Pennsylvania."

So Dick was off for College Park, and since there was already one Mo there, an older Mo, the pair became Big Mo and Little Mo. Ed, Big Mo, was a powerful fullback, who would eventually be the Most Valuable Player of the 1951 Sugar Bowl victory over Tennessee, and he became Mighty Mo, after the battleship of the same title. (A third Modzelewski followed his older brothers to College Park; he would become "No Mo.")

Dick Modzelewski played three years as a defensive tackle for the Terrapins, on the great teams which were 24-4-1. He would become Maryland's first winner of a major national honor when he earned the Outland Trophy as the nation's top lineman for 1952. But he admits that his first on-field experience at Maryland did not lead him to think he would be an All-American, let alone a starter.

"The freshmen scrimmaged against the varsity at the end of practice before the start of the season (1949), and I lined up against Bob Ward," he remembered.

Ward weighed all of 185 pounds, but was regarded as one of the best collegiate linemen of his time. He is still the only player to be a first team All-American as a defensive player one year, and an offensive player the next.

"Well, I'm bigger than he is," Modzelewski went on. "So I thought I'd be able to handle this guy. He kicked the hell out of me, pushed me all over the place. That settled me down in a hurry."

Like most of the players of the early 1950s, Modzelewski considers the 1951 Sugar Bowl triumph over Tennessee as Maryland's finest hour, especialy in his case since his brother Ed was the game's MVP. But there were other games which had special personal meaning for him.

"The Michigan State game of my sophomore year (1950) was a big game for me and my brother," he said. "It was at Michigan State and a whole trainload of our relatives were coming up (to East Lansing) for the game. The game was written up like Michigan State would tear us apart. We were referred to as a farm team.

"Michigan State had one player from a rival high school of mine in western Pennsylvania. My team (West Natrona) had never beaten his team in four years in high school, and I really wanted to beat this guy now. Well, Jim Tatum fired all of us up pretty good. We had a big win."

The big win was by 34-7 over the reigning national champion. That game certainly put Maryland on college football's map. A 16-13 loss to North Carolina State two games later would be the last for Dick Modzelewski and his teammates for over two years, an unbeaten streak of 22 games, including 19 consecutive victories.

"Jim Tatum treated everybody like family," Modzelewski said. "He had no favorites. He was in complete control of the team.

"There were 15 or 16 of us from western Pennsylvania on that Sugar Bowl team. I think Jim Tatum and his staff were the first of the great recruiters. Jack Hennemeier (assistant coach) would be around so often everybody knew who he was when he was recruiting."

The other game Modzelewski likes to remember was during his senior year (1952), against Navy.

"They had an All-American lineman named Larry Eisenhouer ," he said. "I played against him head-to head, and didn't do too well in the first half. The coaches put the spark into me at halftime, and I had a field day in the second half (of a 38-7 Terrapin win)."

At the end if his senior season, Dick Modzelewski was named to every All-American team, and was awarded the Outland Trophy. He was a second-round draft choice of the Washington Redskins; his teammate quarterback Jack Scarbath had been the Redskins' first choice. Since then, he has spent his life in the National Football League, splitting 14 playing seasons with the Redskins, Pittsburgh Steelers, becoming an all-pro with the New York Giants and Cleveland Browns, playing on NFL champions with the Giants (1956) and Browns (1964). After his retirement as a player, Modzelewski became a defensive line coach, helping the 1982 Cincinnati Bengals into the Super Bowl. And he still holds his former Maryland coach Jim Tatum in high esteem.

"It's a shame he never got into coaching professional football," Mo said. "He was very organized, he knew how to motivate his players. He knew the offense and the defense. Those coaches got us thinking about the game plan and fired us up. We went after teams from the beginning of the game."

"I still think those teams were Maryland's best. In that Sugar Bowl game, we held Hank Lauricella to minus one yard rushing. The Maryland teams could do that to anybody."

Through the 22-game unbeaten streak, the Little Mo Modzelewski led defense allowed only 147 points, with only four teams scoring better than one touchdown, and six being shutout. In his three seasons, the Terrapins were beaten only four times.

But because of his big brother Dick Modzelewski will always b remembered as "Little M only a nickname, but it wa er on target.

The first capacity crowd in Gator Bowl history — attendance was 16,666 that day — witnessed one of the greatest games in the storied history of the bowl. A young Maryland team, underdog to an experienced Georgia squad, got up by 13 points in the fourth quarter and eventually settled for the 20-all tie. Lou Gambino was a one-man wrecking crew for the Terrapins, scoring the only touchdown of the first half on a 35-yard run. In the second half, after a Georgia score, Gambino scored on a 1-yard run and on a 24-yard pass from John Baroni. A series of special teams miscues — namely a short kickoff and mishandled punt — set up Georgia comeback. Despite the tie, there was no question as to the game's most valuable player Gambino won the Burkhalter Award, signifying the game's outstanding performer.

Three times in the first half Missouri turned the ball over and all three times Maryland took it in for touchdowns as the Terrapins handed the Tigers their second consecutive Gator Bowl loss. Defensive back John Idzik set up Maryland's first score with a 26-yard interception return to the Mizzou 11. Bob Shemonski scored on a sweep on the next play, and the rout was on. Ed Modzelewski scored on a three-yard run to give the Terps a 13-0 lead and Shemonski capped Maryland's scoring later in the second quarter with a six yard touchdown run.

In a game historians even today call the biggest win in Maryland football history, Jim Tatum's Terrapins upset the nation's No. 1 ranked Tennessee Volunteers of Gen. Bob Neyland. Buoyed by the running of All-American fullback Ed "Mighty Mo" Modzelewski (153 yards on 28 carries) and All-American quarterback Jack Scarbath, the No. 3 ranked Terps scored three TDs before the Vols got one in the first half for a 21-6 lead. They put the game out of reach in the third quarter with a 46-yard interception return TD by Ed Fullerton for a 28-6 margin lead. The Terrapin defense was brilliant all afternoon.

The Terrapins took another undefeated (10-0) record and the nation's No. 1 ranking in their second Orange Bowl visit in three years, and again played Oklahoma. The Sooners, completely unawed by the Terps National Championship team, staged a second quarter land rush to score the only score on a 25-yard sprint by team captain and halfback Larry Grigg. The Terrapins suffered a major setback when All-American Bernie Faloney could not start because of severe ankle injury. He entered the game in the 3rd quarter for five plays, but was unable to continue.

Maryland came away from its first bowl game in 18 years a bitterly disappointed team. The Terrapins had dominated Georgia in all phases of the game. Both teams scored 10 first half points. The Bulldogs went up, scoring in the third after recovering a Terp fumble. Seven times, the Terrapins were inside the Georgia 20-yard line that ended in three Mike-Mayer field goals. On four of the seven occasions, they were within the 13 and came away with zero points.

Tennessee scored their only but winning touchdown with 2:08 left in the game. The winning score came on a 11-yard pass from second string quarterback Randy Wallace to end Larry Seivers. It was Wallace's only pass of the game. The Terps were punting from their 13 when a bad snap from center was recovered by the Vols on the Terps 7. After a loss of 4 yards, Wallace threw for the score. The Terps put on a desperation drive and an apparent 20-yard TD winning reception was ruled out of bounds.

The arm of Scott Zolak produced 28 yard (to Mark Mason) and 15 yard (to Barry Johnson on fourth down and 12 at La Tech's 15-yard line) TD strikes, the latter coming with 52 seconds remaining. With the game in hand if it could hold the Techsters out of field goal range, Maryland failed to stop them and with no time remaining a field goal was kicked from 29 yards. High points for Maryland were Troy Jackson's three TDs, the running of Mason and the pass catching of Johnson.

Maryland's Radio Voices

If it's Maryland athletics, the voice carrying the big play is Johnny Holliday's. For 14 years he has described what's happening on game day in both Terrapin football and basketball. Holliday is Maryland to the listener's mind. He is the smooth pro whose voice, without being loud, conveys great drama; whose voice, without losing any of its professionalism, conveys the missed shot.

Holliday's expertise is utilized by ABC Radio both in its daily sports broadcasts and at the Olympic Games, and by Home Team Sports in its premium cable package. Holliday began a closer relationship with Maryland Athletics by becoming an employee in 1991, guaranteeing the continuation of a quality Maryland voice.

Joining Holliday in the football broadcast booth as color analyst for the first time is Gerry Sandusky, sports anchor and reporter for WBAL-TV in Baltimore since 1988. Sandusky, a 1983 Towson State graduate, is from a distinguished football family.

Sandusky played two seasons of football and one season of basketball for the Tigers. His father, John, was an assistant coach with the Baltimore Colts from 1959 to 1972. He then moved to Miami to join Don Shula's Dolphins' staff where he is currently the assistant head coach.

Former Terp receiver Richie Harris will serve as the broadcast team's sideline reporter, and will report live from the Maryland lockerroom during the post-game show. A native of Columbia, Md., Harris played for the Terps from 1989-92. Last year, he was the second-leading receiver in the Atlantic Coast Conference with 56 receptions. He graduated in December with a degree in Afro-American studies, and he now works fulltime in the athletic department's development office.

The first commercially televised game

The first regularly scheduled, commercially televised production as we know it today came 53 years ago on October 5, 1940, when Sully Krouse, Class of '41, and a band of Terps went north to Philadelphia to play Pennsylvania. At that game were two TV cameras with telescopic lenses and a set of announcers. The signal was first fed through a production unit that selected the best action to be transmitted eventually to sets in Philadelphia and as far away as Reading.

The first couch potatoes were journalists at the Warwick Hotel, enginneers from Philco Inc., and viewers in many parts of the city, who had television sets that were able to receive programming from station W3XE (in later years NBC outlet WPTZ-TV or KYW-TV). The game was the opener for both teams, and was part of a golden era in Eastern football when teams like Pennsylvania led the nation in attendance.

The televised game most noted by historians as being first was an encounter between Fordham and Waynesburg (Pa.) at New York's Randall's Island in 1939. Compared to the 1940 production it was rudimentary, a one-shot experiment that ended with that game. Philco ran Pennsylvania games on television for 12 years following the debut game.

The end of the series came in 1953 when the NCAA sued Notre Dame and Pennsylvania, who had their own networks, for the exclusive rights to do all college games. Years later the NCAA lost a lawsuit to Georgia and Oklahoma, who won the right to contract their own rights fees to television.

Working in the Pennsylvania athletic department during many of the Philco years was Castleman D. Chesley. Later he would become the genius behind televising Atlantic Coast Conference basketball, helping the league dominate in televising its games before others thought of catching-up.

Maryland and the ACC

The Atlantic Coast Conference was founded on May 8, 1953, and its origin solidified the South as a growing enterprise in intercollegiate athletics. For a half-century before, Southern schools competed in a variety of conferences, and at one time an unwieldy 23 schools competed in the Southern Intercollegiate Conference (1929-1932). Maryland joined the Southern Conference in 1921, and was a member when 10 schools spilt from the league to start the Southeastern Conference in 1932. The Terrapins and what was to become the ACC went back to a Southern Conference affiliation until the same factors that caused the old conference to disband occurred—too many disparate schools over too wide an area led to philosophical and logistical problems.

Maryland was the ACC's first football champion, and until recently ranked number one in both football championships won and total victories. In all sports, Maryland is the all-time conference leader in championships.

Clemson, Duke, North Carolina, North Carolina State, South Carolina, Virginia and Wake Forest were the other charter members of the ACC which was formed from the old Southern Conference. South Carolina withdrew in 1971 and Georgia Tech, which withdrew from the SEC in 1964, was admitted in 1978. Florida State was granted admission in 1991.

An Unequalled and Unique Atlantic Coast Conference Tradition ... Maryland Football

- Maryland football teams have more No. 1 rankings in the national polls than any other league team.
- Maryland has scored more points on the football field than any other ACC school.
- In the 1970s and 1980s, Maryland had more bowl appearances than any other league team.
- Maryland gave the ACC its first three consensus All-America players, its first National Coach of the Year, and its first National Championship.
- Maryland set eight ACC football records last year with its high-octane Run and Shoot offense.

An Unequalled League of Excellence ... The Atlantic Coast Conference

- ACC schools have won 47 NCAA & AIAW National Championships, including four in the 1992-93 academic year.
- The last three NCAA Basketball Champions have come from the ACC.
- More than 100 student-athletes from league schools have won individual NCAA titles.
- Seven times in the last 12 years the College Football Association (CFA) has awarded its Academic Achievement Award — signifying the highest graduation rates among its membership — to an Atlantic Coast Conference school.
- More than 40 ACC student-athletes have been named first team Football Academic All-Americans.
- ACC schools have won National Championships in 10 different sports — football, men's basketball, baseball, men's lacrosse, women's lacrosse, men's soccer, women's soccer, field hockey, women's cross country and men's golf.
- The nine league teams are a combined 68-57-5 (.542) in bowl games — a success rate second only to the PAC-10.

The Football Bowl Coalition

The Orange Bowl, Sugar Bowl, Cotton Bowl and Fiesta Bowl (Tier One) have joined with the Atlantic Coast Conference, The Big East Football Conference and the University of Notre Dame in a partnership to provide the opportunity for the champions of the two conferences and Notre Dame to appear in one of the four bowl games each year.

In addition, the ACC and the Big East champions are guaranteed a spot in the Orange Bowl, Sugar Bowl, or Cotton Bowl each year.

The current commitments of the conference champions of the Big Eight to the Orange Bowl, the Southeast Conference to the Sugar Bowl, and the Southwest Conference to the Cotton Bowl remain intact, leaving two additional berths open in the four Tier One coalition bowls. (ACC + Big East + Notre Dame + Big Eight + SEC + SWC = six slots filled of a possible eight.) These two slots will be filled from a pool of "at-large" teams which will include the next best teams (as selected by the Tier One coaltion bowls) from the following five conferences — ACC, Big East, Big Eight, PAC-10 (whose champion remains committed to the Rose bowl) and SWC. The three "at-large" teams not selected to the Tier One coalition bowls will then be available for selection to the Tier Two bowls of the coalition (Gator Bowl, Blockbuster Bowl, and John Hancock Bowl).

Since the original Bowl Coalition was signed, the ACC has added two more bowl alliances. This winter, a third ACC team will compete in the Peach Bowl and a fourth league team will participate in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

The team selection date for all the bowls involved in the coalition (Tier One and Two) will be following the completion of regular season play.

The selection process

1. Whenever Notre Dame, the ACC and The Big East champions occupy the number one and two rankings in the final regular season Associated Press poll, they must play the national championship game in the Fiesta Bowl.
2. Whenever the number one or two teams in the final regular season Associated Press poll come from among the ACC Champion, The Big East Champion or Notre Dame, and the host conference champion from among the Sugar, Cotton, or Orange Bowl is ranked number one or two, these teams must play one another in the bowl of the host conference champion.
3. Barring the above, the Orange Bowl, Sugar Bowl and Cotton Bowl will select first in order of the final rankings of their respective host conference champions. Following that selection, the Fiesta Bowl will have two selections from the remaining pool of five teams.
4. Once these selections have been completed the remaining three "at-large" teams will be available to the Tier Two bowls which will select one team each in order of per team net payout.
5. The ACC and Big East champions and Notre Dame have the right to pass a Tier One selection for a higher payout, to avoid a rematch of a regular season game, or to avoid playing in a particular bowl game for a third consecutive year.
6. A team may pass a selection to a Tier Two Bowl only to avoid a rematch of a regular season game, or to avoid playing in a particular bowl game for a third consecutive year.

National champion Maryland and 18th-ranked Duke tied for the ACC's inaugural grid title. The Terps finished the regular season with a perfect 10-0 record, including a 3-0 mark in league play. Maryland, which lost to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, 7-0, scored 298 points, the most by a team until 1967, while allowing an ACC record-low 31 points. The Terps led the nation in rushing defense, 83.9 yards allowed per outing, and scoring defense, 3.1 points per game. Terp tackle Stan Jones earned consensus All-America honors while teammate Bernie Faloney was named first team Academic All-America.

Maryland won its first conference championship in 18 years, sweeping past all six of its league opponents. It marked the 10th time in conference history that a team has gone unbeaten in league play. An ACC record three teams earned bowl bids. Maryland lost to Tennessee, 7-3, in the Liberty Bowl. The Terps extended their win streak against ACC foes to 10-in-a-row. Clemson's Bennie Cunningham, North Carolina's Ken Huff and Maryland's Randy White were consensus All-Americans. White, a senior defensive tackle, won both the Outland and Lombardi Trophies.

Maryland's powerful Terrapins swept through the regular season undefeated and became only the second team in ACC history to win three consecutive league titles outright. Coach Jerry Claiborne's club ran its conference victory string to a record 20 straight. The Terps appeared in a bowl for the fourth straight year, losing to Southwest Conference champion Houston, 30-21, in the Cotton Bowl. Maryland tackle Joe Campbell and Wake Forest defensive back Bill Armstrong were consensus All-Americans. Maryland's No. 8 ranking in the final AP poll was the first top 10 finish by an ACC team since 1960.

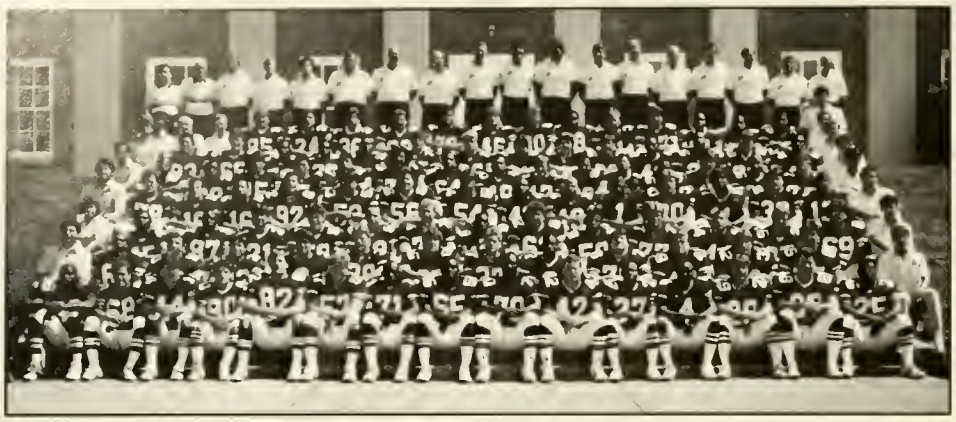
1984



Maryland pocketed the championship for the second year in a row and earned their fifth outright crown over the past 11 seasons. The title was not decided until the season's final weekend when the Terps knocked off Virginia, 45-33, for the league crown. Maryland, taking part in its third straight bowl game, defeated Tennessee in the Sun Bowl, 28-27, while Virginia, making its first-ever bowl game appearance, defeated Purdue in the Peach Bowl, 27-24. Maryland, trailing Miami 31-0 at the half, rallied for 42 second half points to beat the Hurricanes, 42-40, setting a record for the greatest comeback in NCAA Division IA football history.

University President

William E. Kirwan

After more than 25 years of service as a professor and administrator at the University of Maryland at College Park, Dr. William E. Kirwan was appointed president on February 1, 1989. He served as acting president of the university from August 1, 1988, until the time of his appointment as president.

Dr. Kirwan joined the university in 1964 as an assistant professor of mathematics. He rose through the faculty ranks as associate professor (1968-1972), professor (1972-present), amd chair of the Department of Mathematics (1977-1981).

In 1981, he was appointed vice chancellor for academic affairs, College Park's chief academic post. From August to November 1982, Dr. Kirwan served as acting chancellor, returning to his position as vice chancellor upon the arrival of the new chancellor. As Vice Chancellor, Dr. Kirwan raised admission standards, increased the number of merit scholarships and graduate fellowships, and established an academic planning process.

Dr. Kirwan is a member of numerous honorary and professional societies, including Phi Beta Kappa, the American Mathematical Society, and the Mathematical Association of America. Recently, he was inducted into the Order of King Leopold II by the Belgian government and into the University of Kentucky Hall of Distinguished Alumni. Dr. Kirwan is the co-editor of the book Advances in Complex Analysis, and the author of many published articles on mathematical research. He served as editor of the Proceedings of the American Mathematical Society from 1977 to 1985. He chaired the Mathematical Sciences in the Year 2000 Committee, a task force created by the National Research Council to improve mathematics education at the nation's colleges and universities during the next decade.

He is a member of the Board of Directors of the World Trade Center Institute, the Baltimore Council on Foreign Affairs, and the Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre Foundation. He also serves on the American Council on Education's Commission on Women in Higher Education, and the Prince George's County Ad Hoc Committee on Black Male Achievement.

Born in Louisville, Kentucky, on April 14, 1938, Dr. Kirwan received a bachelor's degree in mathematics from the University of Kentucky in 1960. He holds master's (1962) and Ph.D. (1964) degrees in mathematics from Rutgers University.

Dr. Kirwan and his wife, Patricia, have a son who received his bachelor's and master's degrees in architecture from the College Park campus, and a daughter who received her bachelor's degree in Journalism from the University.

Andy Geiger
Athletic Director

Andy Geiger, whose tenure as Athletic Director at Stanford University elevated him to the top rank of athletic administrators, was named to direct the athletic program at Maryland by College Park President William E. Kirwan on Sept. 7, 1990.

Since Geiger's first day on the job, he has elevated the image of Maryland athletics, while providing structure and planning for the 1990s and beyond.

Of immediate impact was his being instrumental in establishing across the board equilibrium in the 23-sport program in the face of financial challenges.

While Geiger has been at Maryland, athletics have flourished. The women's lacrosse team won the 1992 NCAA Championship, the field hockey team advanced to the Final Four and the women's basketball team reached No. 1 in the country for the first time ever. In 1992-93, Geiger oversaw the hiring of Mark Duffner as football coach, the completion of a new athletic training facility at Byrd Stadium, renovation of lockerroom facilities for several varsity sports and the resurgence of the men's basketball program to the point where every ACC game last season was sold out.

Above all, Geiger is establishing management procedures to handle the complexities of a large, Division I athletic program, procedures that are needed in a time of unparalleled scrutiny of college athletics.

He currently serves on two NCAA and several Atlantic Coast Conference committees. He is a member of the NCAA special committee to review financial conditions in intercollegiate athletics. He is also a member of the NCAA special events committee, serving on the post-season football subcommittee.

Maryland is Geiger's fourth athletic directorship. He was named AD at Brown in 1972, and moved to another Ivy League school, Pennsylvania, in 1975, overseeing at Penn the last Ivy program to reach the NCAA Basketball Final Four. At Stanford, Geiger oversaw an athletic juggernaut — amassing 27 NCAA titles in his 11 years at the helm.

Geiger is a 1961 graduate of Syracuse. He and his wife, Eleanor, have two children, Phillip and Gregory.

Dr. Sue Tyler
Senior Associate Athletic Director

Dr. Suzanne Tyler is at the heart of Maryland athletics. Her 19-year association with the program has seen her serve the department in every fashion imaginable. From coach to administrator to confidant of student-athletes, Tyler envelopes herself in red and white.

When Maryland needed an interim athletic director in 1990 to direct the 23-sport intercollegiate program, Tyler answered the call. She served in that capacity until the arrival of Andy Geiger.

Tyler's success has been extraordinary on both the athletic and academic levels. She is one of the few coaches in history to win NCAA Championships in two sports — lacrosse in 1981 and 1986, and field hockey in 1987. Tyler performed double duty in 1990. While serving as the chief athletic department administrator, she led the Terps' women's lacrosse team to the national championship game. She was named lacrosse National Coach of the Year in 1984 and 1986.

Her career reaches into the academic realm where she is as successful off the field as on. She has earned honors in each stage of her academic career — as an undergraduate at Northeastern in 1969, receiving her master's from Penn State in 1972 and her Ph.D. from Maryland in 1986.

Tyler and her husband, Dennis Casey, reside in Beltsville, Md. with their two-year-old son, Andrew, and daughter, Alexis.

Jeff Gray
Associate Athletic Director

Jeffrey W. Gray was appointed Associate Athletic Director in June of 1991, coming from the University of California at Los Angeles where he was Associate Director of Development in UCLA's successful $25 million capital campaign for athletics.

Gray is responsible for the success of the Maryland Partnership, the unique capital campaign in College Park where the State of Maryland matches private monies raised to refurbish and construct campus athletic facilities. Maryland has already refurbished Byrd Stadium with $20 million in improvements, and Gray is responsible for continuing the Byrd renovation, and for funding a master development plan which touches all intercollegiate sports.

Gray, 42, began his development career at the University of Chicago in 1973. He was part of an 11 member staff that was responsible for Medical Center development. He moved to La Salle High School in Milwaukie, Oregon in 1975, and for six years he coached basketball, football and baseball, and taught English.

A native of Albany, Calif., Gray attended St. Mary's College High School in Berkeley. He first came east to attend Georgetown, and graduated in 1975 with a B.A. in English Literature. He was an eight-time letterwinner in football and baseball as a Hoya, earning most valuable player honors in football in 1972.

Sandra P. Worth

Head Athletic Trainer

Sandy Worth begins her second year as the University of Maryland's Head Athletic Trainer, having been elevated to that position, July 1, 1992.

While the position is relatively new for Worth, her association with the Maryland training staff dates back to 1973. This football season, Worth will begin her third decade as a member of the University's training staff.

As head trainer, Worth directly supervises the athletic training of the football team. She directs the operations in Maryland's new state-of-the-art training room in the Football Team Building.

Worth supervises and schedules a staff of five full-time assistant trainers and a throng of student trainers, orchestrating the training regimen for each of Maryland's 23 intercollegiate sport programs.

Worth served as associate athletic trainer before her appointment to head trainer. As associate trainer, she managed the main training room in Cole Field House. In her care were 14 teams which included the nationally competitive women's basketball, lacrosse and field hockey teams along with the men's wrestling and swimming and diving teams. Worth also supervised the instruction of the student trainers working with the various athletic teams. She was the trainer for three national championships by the Terps women's lacrosse team and one by the field hockey team. In addition, she was the trainer for the women's basketball team as it won eight ACC titles.

Worth was the head trainer for the 1989 U.S. Women's Lacrosse team that won the World Cup Championship and again served in that capacity this summer in Scotland.

Jim Weir

For the last 23 years, Jim Weir has been a member of the University of Maryland athletic training staff, assisting with the football program for 22 of those years. This season, he will again assist Head Trainer Sandy Worth with the day-to-day medical training care for the Terps' football team.

Weir is involved in all aspects of the athletic training and injury rehabilitation efforts for the entire football program.

A Michigan native, he attended Olivet College before enlisting in the United States Navy in 1960. He served 10 years in the Navy as a Hospital Corpsman 2nd Class. Dr. Stan Lavine

Team Physician

Dr. Stan Lavine, head orthopedic surgeon for Maryland's 23 intercollegiate athletic teams, has roots that grow deep into Maryland's red clay. He first served the Terps as a football lettermen in 1948 and 1949 and has, since, served the Terps from the medical profession.

A native of Pittsburgh where he attended Schenley High School, Dr. Lavine matriculated at Maryland to prepare for his medical career. He played football initially for Clark Shaughnesy, one of football's great innovators. By the time of his 1950 graduation, he had led Maryland to, under then Head Coach Jim Tatum, a 9-1 season and a 20-7 victory over Missouri in the Gator Bowl as the team's quarterback. Following his graduation from the University's Medical School, he interned in hospitals in Philadelphia and Cleveland, served two years in the Air Force, and then began his orthopedic career medical practice and work with Maryland's athletic teams.

Dr. Lavine attends all home football and basketball games and some road games and is on call at all times for the athletes on the University's 23 sports teams. His professional reputation is national in scope and many prominent athletes regularly seek his treatment. He was the team physician for the Washington Redskins (1975-85), and was there for two Super Bowls. He was the team physician for the Washington Bullets when they won the NBA Championship in 1978. Working with Lavine is Dr. Dave Linehan, another highly regarded orthopedic surgeon. Linehan worked at the University's Student Health Center before deciding to go into orthopedic surgery. He has been associated with the University's athletic teams since 1973.

Supporting Lavine, Linehan and Head Trainer Sandra Worth on a day to day basis are Drs Sacared Bodison and Steve Fahey of the University's Student Health Center. Dr. Bodison is Clinical Director and Director of Sports Medicine. She, along with Fahey, take care of the daily medical problems that might occur in all sports. Diagnosis and treatment are overseen at the training rooms and at the Health Center. If necessary, they refer student-athletes to specialists through Worth.

EQUIPMENT STAFF

The University of Maryland equipment staff is directed by Ron Ohringer, who begins his sixth season as the Terps' equipment manager.

Ohringer manages the ordering, inventory, maintenance and distribution of all athletic equipment for the University's 23 intercollegiate sport programs. He works on a day-to-day basis with the football program, providing all the equipment needs for a major-college football program.

Ohringer may occupy the largest office on the University grounds. The equipment room in the Football Team Building covers more than 45,000 square feet. He also directs the operation of equipment rooms in Cole Field House and the Varsity Team House.

A native of Bethesda, MD, Ohringer attended the University of Maryland, graduating in 1985 with a bachelor of science in journalism and public relations. While a student, he served as a student manager and was selected to be the head student manager his senior year.

He has worked as a public relations assistant with both the Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles, in addition to working for the Arena Football League and the Alexandria Baseball Dukes.

Ohringer returned to the University in 1988 after assistant equipment manager Todd Goodman was involved in a tragic auto accident.

Ohringer has a staff of one full-time assistant, two part-time assistants and 14 student managers. Eric Youngstrom is the staff full-time assistant. He also is in his sixth year with the program. He assists with football responsibilities, and coordinates the entire equipment assignments relating to men's lacrosse, track & field, soccer and baseball. Youngstrom attended the University of Iowa. He worked for the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL and with the Arena Football League prior to joining the Maryland staff.

Ron Fulton and John Bowie oversee the Cole Field House equipment room, coordinating the daily issuance and cleaning needs of seven varsity sports.

Fulton is entering his 22nd year in the Maryland equipment room. After spending 15 years with Macke Corporation on campus, he was hired as equipment manager in 1972. After 16 years in charge, Fulton retired and now works part time.

Bowie is starting his fourth year with the program. While he also assists with football, his main responsibility is overseeing the Cole Field House equipment room, coordinating basketball, volleyball, field hockey and lacrosse equipment. He is a 1976 graduate of Bowie State University.

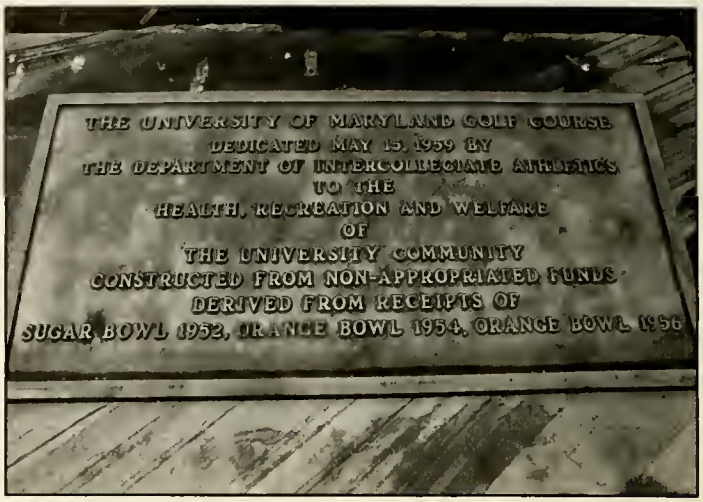
GROUNDS STAFF

Keeping Maryland's seven intercollegiate athletic fields playable is the responsibility of the Grounds Staff. William "Bunk" Carter and Bill Reinohl work to see that all Maryland athletes compete on fields that are well kept, consistent in quality and that meet all playing standards.

Carter, the Head Groundskeeper, has worked at Maryland for the last 32 years. He has spent his entire career caring for the athletic playing fields. Carter has worked for five athletic directors and eight football coaches. He has seen the Terps win six Atlantic Coast Conference Championships and play in 12 bowls.

Reinohl is in his 15th year on the staff, his 11th as a full-time employee. He first began working on the playing fields as a student in 1979 and was hired full-time in 1983. He earned a B.S. degree in agronomy 1987 and a second B.S. degree in conservation/resource development 1983, both from Maryland. Reinohl is an accomplished lecturer giving speeches regarding his fields of study.

The grounds staff provides maintenance for six natural grass fields and one artificial turf facility. Their work includes a fertilization/herbicide program, painting and stenciling fields for the various sports, stadium cleanup and upkeep and field renovation.



As the plaque located between the No. 1 and No. 10 tee boxes indicates, the Maryland Golf Course was built with monies derived from the football programs success.

Maryland history is made as The Terrapin is hoisted onto its Byrd Stadium pedestal for the first time on September 5, 1992.

Terrapin Club, M Club combine 115 years of scholar athlete support into single mission

TERRAPIN CLUB

Two traditional graduate arms of Maryland Athletics, representing friends and alumni of athletics for a combined 115 years, are joining forces to meet the extraordinary needs of today's student-athlete. The Terrapin Club/Maryland Educational Foundation, which for 46 years has been raising scholarship monies, and the M Club, the alumni letterwinners support group for 69 years, will now have common gift-giving levels and goal support of Maryland's 23 sport program.

CLUB

The Terrapin Club/Maryland Educational Foundation

The Maryland Educational Foundation was founded on July 1, 1946, at the urging of Clark Shaugnessy, the football coach. The social segment of the organization, the Terrapin Club, was founded later that year.

The membership started with 132 friends of Maryland athletics each donating $100 for scholarships and an additional $25 for social dues. The early years featured philanthropic support for Terrapin scholarships, which were partly supported by athletic department revenues. What was an informal orgnaization giving much needed help to Maryland athletics became an integral part of the budget process with the soaring costs of intercollegiate athletics in the 1970s. Now most scholarship revenues for Terrapin student athletes come from the Maryland Educational Foundation. In 1991-92, $1.5 million was raised by the M.E.F. from 3,250 members.

The M Club

Like so many other worthy projects at the University, the M Club had Dr. H.C. "Curley" Byrd on board at the start as the club's first president in 1923. Byrd was putting the finishing touches on the first Byrd Stadium complex built along U.S. 1, down campus from the present stadium, and monies were needed to fill needs beyond bricks and mortar. The present University of Maryland at College Park was formed in 1920, and Byrd was finally getting the athletic complex he had desired for years. The M Club was formed to meet the needs of a bigger, larger athletic department, to supply support for the student-athlete now that a new complex was built. The same philosophy drives the M Club today as it provides support for student-athletes through its 1250 active members at a time when facilties are being built, and additional funds area priority.

The Terrapin Club, one of the fastest growing booster clubs in the country, and the M Club, alumni letterwinners supporting the student athlete, invite friends of Maryland to make a commitment.

The Spirit: Cheryl Sollars, Michelle Murphy, Kristen Murphy, Gina Meawad, Mikki Scarlotta.

The Maryland Spirit epitomizes The Spirit of Maryland

The Maryland Spirit for Football is a volunteer organization of men and women students who demonstrate their pride in the University by supporting the Terrapins with assistance in recruiting, public relations and football office functions.

The Spirit begins the 1993-94 Red Hot football season with an expanded program. Each member commits to contribute service hours around their academic schedules, utilizing their personal skills and abilities.

The athletic department and football program benefits greatly from the attitudes and personal experiences of the Spirit. The membership includes sons and daughters of Terrapin Club members, the campus teaching staff, and coaching alumni. Demonstrating a dedication to the community, Maryland Spriit members can be found serving as role models for youth in health and charitable organizations.

Officers for the 1993-94 school year are Michelle Murphy, coordinator; Gina Meawad, coordinator; Mikki Scarlotta, secretary-treasurer. Returning members include Kanika Clay, Jennifer Donnelly, Shana Myers, Rosie Reese, Pauline Sulley, Kristen Murphy, Kleanthis (Ike) Karavangelos, Christy Maier, Eduardo (Eddie) Paredes, Peter Thornberg and Cheryl Sollars.

Measuring sheer strength and the heart of the student-athlete

Strength coaches Dave Ungerer and Dwight Galt are after more than mega-numbers in the squat, clean and bench press. To present their case they created the Iron Terps, the elite product of a year of improvements in the Terrapin conditioning program.

Utilizing the Strength Index (Totals from the three lifts divided by the student-athlete's body weight) presents a more accurate picture of a student-athlete's strength level. Instead of the heaviest student-athlete necessarily producing the largest number, all student-athletes may receive superior recognition. The Strength Index allows all student-athletes to compete for the ultimate player development award: IRON TERP.

An insistence on doing well

There is an insistence in the Maryland football program that student-athletes get a degree in a career field that will enhance their life after College Park. The insistence is underlined by Coach Mark Duffner and his staff, by the athletic administration of Andy Geiger, and by the Academic Support Unit of the Department of Athletics.

Dr. Javaune Adams-Gaston, educator and clinical psychologist, is the Director of Athletic Student Services. She oversees the student-athlete's educational and medical well-being by her management of the Academic Support Unit and the Athletic Medicine support staff.

Towards a student-athlete's development, ASU provides

- Personal academic assessment
- Academic advising and counseling
- Supervised study
- Learning and study skills programs
- Computer training and usage
- Group and individual tutoring
- Career mentoring
- Summer internships

A 1978 graduate of the University of Dubuque with a B.S. in biology, psychology and general sciences, she earned her Master's degree in Clinical Psychology from Loras College in 1980 and her Ph D in Counseling Psychology from Iowa State in 1983.

Dr. Adams-Gaston regularly provides time for individual student-athletes as educational advisor and counselor. Her hands-on approach extends to a thorough series of seminars she and her staff hold that train the student-athlete in pertinent education beyond the classroom. Seminars cover time management, study skills, stress management, motivation, drug education, career planning and vocational mentorship. The school year begins for newly recruited student-athletes with not only an academic orientation program, but also a seminar on interacting with the news media by nationally known expert Kathleen Hessert.

Assisting Dr. Adams Gaston are three experienced assistant directors.

Elizabeth Friedman begins her third year as a full-time athletic department employee after four years of assisting student-athletes on a part-time basis in the ASU. A native of Rockville, Md., and a graduate of College Park, she coordinates the Academic Support Unit's satisfactory progress monitoring system for all athletes, and works daily with the football team in all aspects of academic support. The monitoring system is effective because of the full communication between the ASU staff, the faculty and student-athletes.

Dr. Javaune Adams-Gaston, Director of Student Support Services for Athletics, directs programs that touch all aspects of a student-athlete's life.

Eleanor Green is beginning her fifth year with the University and her third with the ASU. A native of Morgantown, W Va., Green earned her Bachelor's degree in social work in 1983 and her Master's degree in counseling in 1988 from West Virginia University. She coordinates the flow of paperwork concerning student-athlete eligibility, and handles the academic counseling and monitoring of eight Terp sports teams, including men's and women's basketball. Green also coordinates an in-depth orientation program before the fall semester.

Don Pearman is in his second year at College Park, but his experience in the University System numbers four years. He formerly was program director of the Meirhoff Scholarships at the University of Maryland at Baltimore County campus. A model program of minority recruitment in the fields of math and science, the Meirhoff program is widely emulated. In the ASU, Pearman is responsible for post-graduate scholarship endeavors, the unit's tutorial program, and he monitors six Varsity sports and football.

Pearman, a native of Brooklyn, N Y, received both his Bachelor's degree in sociology and his Master's degree in counseling from St Lawrence University

A good start, a FAST start

The acronym, START FAST (Student Athlete Resource Tactics—Freshman Athlete Scholastic Training), means the Academic Support Unit is on top of the needs of every student-athlete who enters Maryland. An orientation program especially designed for incoming freshmen and transfers, START FAST makes the transition to Maryland user-friendly.

START FAST directs the efforts and expertise of the coaches, the academic and development staff, and campus faculty and administrators towards the successful inclusion of the student-athlete into the University community.

The program allows the newcomer to balance his dual role of academics and athletics in an unfamiliar environment. START FAST builds and improves student-athlete study skills, and provides the opportunity to explore personal development issues.

Although the ASU coordinates START FAST, coaches participate daily in its execution; and campus faculty and staff provide expertise on a rainbow of pertinent topics. Student-athletes are taught organizational skills which include note taking, time management, pro-active planning, learning strategies, test-taking, and writing skills.

Student-athletes prepare a FAST Notebook which includes daily priority lists and summaries of each day's class lectures. The Notebook is reviewed daily, and has proven an invaluable resource in time management for the new student-athlete.

All the reporters know where this media market is Competitive excellence leads to media attention. In the Washington/Baltimore metropolitan market, the fourth largest in the nation, that means notice in one of the three major media centers in the United States.

Maryland has the press facilities to match the importance of the media market. A new $3.4 million dollar press box, the Tyser Tower, can seat 200 print media on its third level, and on the fourth level are state-of-the-art facilities for television and radio. Maryland's post game press conferences are held in the large Football Complex conference area, and are telecast to both media and guests of the University in the Tyser Tower.

▪ Within the Metropolitan market, two of the nation's top ten newspapers, the Washington Post and Baltimore Sun, cover the Terrapins extensively.

▪ The nation's newspaper, USA Today, is headquartered 20 miles from Byrd Stadium. No matter where you live, USA Today informs its readers about the Metropolitan area.

▪ Almost 1,000 periodicals and magazines are published in the Metropolitan area.

▪ Every major network—NBC, ABC, CBS and Fox—has a major news gathering affiliate in both Washington and Baltimore. No major market in the East can boast eight significant television news outlets within 35 miles of a campus. And Washington has an additional 24 hour all-news television station.

▪ NBC, ABC, and CBS also maintain their own news bureaus in Washington, as does CNN (Cable News Network) and PBS (Public Broadcasting). In addition, major cable outlets like BET (Black Entertainment Network) are headquartered here. In radio, each major network has a Washington bureau, and Mutual Radio, NBC Radio and National Public Radio are headquartered in the Metropolitan region.

▪ One of the Associated Press's largest news bureaus is in Washington, as is its radio division. Bureaus are maintained by the New York Times and every leading news service. International news organizations like Reuters cover Maryland events, and countless news organizations and networks from around the world have bureaus in Washington.

A great place to visit, and to stay for an education

There's no sense sitting around in the Washington-Baltimore Metropolitan area Sports, recreation, sightseeing, the arts—no area has more diversity than the National Capital Area and the country surrounding the Chesapeake Bay

The State Capital, Annapolis

• Washington is located just over three miles from Byrd Stadium. The National Capital's major attractions are within 10 miles Making the trip easier starting in the winter of 1993, is the arrival of the Metro Rail System in College Park. Within easy walking distance of campus, or accessible by campus shuttle, the station will allow easy access to Washington, Suburban Maryland, and Northern Virginia The Metro is one of the most modern transportation networks anywhere

• Baltimore is located 35 miles north of the College Park campus. Its rejuvenation as an urban center is unprecedented. The Inner Harbor, its National Aquarium and tall ships, and the nearby Orioles Park at Camden Yards create an exciting, vibrant, holiday atmosphere in a city that boasts one of the world's great sea ports. The heart of Maryland, the Chesapeake Bay, is 20 miles from campus, and the state capital, Annapolis, is 30 miles.

• Washington and Baltimore may be reached easily from anywhere in the U.S., and the World. USAir, which is headquartered in the Metropolitan area, uses Baltimore/Washington International Airport as a hub. Both BWI and Dulles Airport, which is a hub for United Airlines, are international airports, capable of providing service to any continent. College Park is 10 minutes from the Amtrak Northeastern Corridor and frequent train service up and down the East Coast.

Maryland is choosing quality

These are great days at the University of Maryland at College Park. The University, through an act of the state legislature, has been designated officially as the state's flagship campus with a mandate to become one of the nation's leading public universities.

The University is committed to providing students with the best education possible. To help the new student get off to a solid start, the University has initiated a program called First Year Focus.

- First Year Focus ensures that students become acquainted with the campus's most important resource—the faculty. The program provides new students with the opportunity to study with members of the faculty in small classes. Students may have several such classes at Maryland, but every first year student will be assured of having at least one.
- The University has established a pilot program called Connections: Course Clusters, which enables first year students to enroll in a variety of thematically related courses, supplemented by a one credit linking seminar. Course Clusters not only allow students to examine a given subject from a variety of disciplinary perspectives, but it also gives them the opportunity to develop a network of friends and study partners.
- The University invites all students to participate in the First Year Kick Off, a series of lectures and performances by leading scholars and artists during the first weeks of the fall semester. These special events offer the College Park community an opportunity to hear some of the world's best speakers and most talented artists, and to bring students and faculty together.

The faculty have enthusiastically endorsed a new general education program that began in the fall of 1990. It is a blueprint for comprehensive changes in the undergraduate experience at Maryland. The campus is reducing undergraduate enrollment, improving the ratio between faculty and students, raising admissions standards, revamping the University Honors Program, strengthening the advising system, supporting expanded undergraduate research, and encouraging innovations in teaching.

We invite you to take a closer look at the University of Maryland, its extensive academic programs, faculty, research facilities, student activities and support services, and the resources and opportunities it offers. See for yourself the number of different ways in which Maryland is choosing quality. There has never been a better time to choose Maryland.

Choosing excellence

The University of Maryland at College Park recruits the very best students and faculty, and is among the top 10 universities in the nation in research endowments and funding. The faculty at College Park consists of scholars and experts in virtually every field, as well as Pulitzer Prize winners, Guggenheim Fellows and recipients of the National Medal of Science. College Park professors have pioneered the use of lasers in the operating room, written the definitive biography of William Shakespeare, and founded an internationally acclaimed campus chorus.

Each member of the faculty demonstrates a strong commitment to teaching. In fact, all faculty are evaluated annually by students. Professors at College Park will challenge you to think, to question, to explore and to discover. In many classes, students are able to work side-by-side with professors on projects of mutual interest. And the University's ratio is as low as that at many smaller colleges.

Choosing a home where much has gone before

Just after the American Revolution, the state of Maryland established its first two colleges at Chestertown and Annapolis. By the 1850s, at least 30 little colleges had sprung-up over the state, many with state support, but many of them disappearing within a few years. Then in 1859 a different kind of institution appeared at College Park—the Maryland Agricultural College—the third such college in the world, created mainly for farmers' sons. The college was established by Charles Benedict Calvert, a wealthy planter from nearby Riversdale—now Riverdale—and later a congressman. Calvert built a handsome Gothic dormitory-classroom structure located in a grove of trees near the present Morrill Hall, and he divided the land down the Baltimore-Washington Turnpike into small plots where each of the 50-or-so students experimented with a different crop. After the Civil War the institution became a land-grant college, with small appropriations from Washington

The little college began to grow about 1900 when agricultural experiments began to bring prosperity to Maryland, and when the college expanded its offerings into engineering, business and the liberal arts. In 1912 the old Gothic building burned, and the state provided modern structures. Women were admitted to the campus, and graduate work began. In 1920 the college combined with the long established professional schools of Baltimore and changed its name to the University of Maryland. Growth accelerated after 1935 when the politically astute football coach, H. C. "Curley" Byrd, became president, added scores of new programs, and won national football championships. In the 1950s and 1960s President Wilson H. Elkins maintained the rapid growth, and College Park became one of the largest campuses in the nation. President Elkins, a Rhodes Scholar, transformed the institution's public image to one of high academic integrity. In the 1970s and 1980s the University's graduate and research programs flourished. In 1988 the General Assembly of Maryland combined six state colleges with the five campuses of the University of Maryland, and specifically charged College Park with the role of leadership in the revamped system.
